Mr. Neville Chamberlain's Hint During Commons Debate on Conference

SOVIET SHOOTING INCIDENT

Arrest of Frontier Guards

Moscow, July 10.
The frontier guards who shot the three Japanese fishermen at Kamchatka, off Cape Olga, have been arrested. The chief of the Kamchatka frontier guards is also reported to have been arrested. Investigation into the actions of the guards is now being conducted.—Reuter.

PORTUGAL SWOOPS

PLOTS AGAINST GOVERNMENT

Lisbon, July 10.
A series of arrests has followed the official communique announcing that measures were to be taken to dissipate the revolutionary atmosphere which the enemies of the Republic have been displaying lately.

Dr. Antonio Sergio, the former Democratic Minister and ex-Colonel Aragao, who is famous for his action in German West Africa in 1915, were among the first to be dragged into the net.

They had only recently returned to Portugal from Spain where they had been awaiting for the announcement of the amnesty for those responsible for previous revolutions against the Dictatorship. It is apparently suggested that they at once began plotting against the government upon their return to Portugal.

It is also revealed that the colonel in command of the Thirty-Fifth Infantry Regiment at Viana was arrested on Saturday on a charge of conspiracy.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S INCREASE IN POPULATION

Tokyo, July 11.
For the first time on record, Japan's increase in population over a twelve months' period has exceeded one million.

According to the official 1932 figures just published, the increase in population was 1,007,000.—Reuter.

DAY AND NIGHT BATTLE

GEN. FANG CHEN-WU ATTACK ON DOLONOR

Mukden, July 10.
The Kwangtung Army has dispatched reinforcements to Dolonor to resist the attack on the Japanese troops by General Fang Chen-wu, whose vanguard was repulsed on July 9th by the garrison at Dolonor after fighting which lasted all day and night.—Reuter.

Two Chinese women who admitted keeping a brothel in Hollywood Road, Hong Kong, were fined $100 and $75, respectively, by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

STABILISATION SNAGS

DISTURBING EFFECT ON PUBLIC OPINION

"INNOCUOUS STUFF"

LONDON, JULY 10.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, surveyed the prospects and the present position of the World Economic Conference before a crowded House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. Chamberlain described as "pretty innocuous stuff" the gold bloc resolution which President Roosevelt rejected, but the effect of the rejection on public opinion in the gold countries was extremely disturbing. The Chancellor advised a level-headed attitude, especially in connexion with violent depreciation of the Dollar.

If they could agree on a return to the gold standard, or on an international monetary standard, the Conference would have done very useful work to facilitate a return to normal conditions. The raising of prices or wholesale commodities was still the British primary objective.

MR. LANSBURY'S SUGGESTION

The Chancellor of the Exchequer expressed the view that the raising of commodity prices could not be effected by monetary action alone. The building up of confidence was essential.

The British delegation adhered to the belief that the world's chief troubles could only be solved by international action and agreement.

TEMPORARY HALT.

The grave proportions which the stabilisation question had assumed and its final effect in bringing some of the Conference's work to a temporary halt was described by Mr. Chamberlain. He said that no agreement had been reached in reference to future progress, but they hoped that it would still be found possible to bridge the difficulties.

Nevertheless, he urged that the violent and largely unnatural depreciation of the dollar should not lead them to early and ill-considered conclusions.

NO SPARKLE.

The debate lacked sparkle. It merely afforded the text for the leading speakers of the House of Commons to preach their well-worn (if not worn-out) economic and financial principles.

There was little criticism of the Government apart from that levelled by Mr. George Lansbury, the Leader of the Opposition, who accused Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. MacDonald of an entire lack of policy.

Mr. Lansbury declared that the present industrial and financial system had outlived its usefulness.

He urged the Government to take control of the national currency.

"A DECENT TEAR."

Mr. J. A. S. Amery, former Dominions Secretary, shed a "decent tear" over the fate of the Conference, but held that nobody was to blame.

Sir Herbert Samuel, the Liberal leader, praying for the restoration of international trade, expressed the opinion that if defensive measures were necessary they should be calculated to meet a particular evil in view, for instance, of the fact that the yen had depreciated forty per cent. and that Japanese goods had flooded the market.

DRASTIC MEASURES.

He said it was no good adopting ten to twenty per cent. tariffs to meet competition of this kind. It needed far more drastic measures. Most of the speakers urged that sterling be linked with the dollar and that the Government should work in close association with the United States.—Reuter.

AT THE CONFERENCE

Committee of Ten Appointed

LONDON, JULY 10.

Contrary to expectations, the Conference did not to-day reach any conclusive decisions on monetary matters, but a large measure of agreement was reached on the economic side.

At the meeting of the Monetary Commission, the American delegate, Mr. Cox, declared that work could not proceed except on the basis of unanimity. It was necessary to appoint a drafting committee to compose the differences.

A Committee of Ten was unanimously appointed, with Mr. Cox as chairman.—Reuter.

London, July 10.
The Bureau of the World Economic Conference which assembled this morning for what was expected to be a fateful session, since it was to decide what work could be profitably continued, by Conference delegates, adjourned at one o'clock this afternoon with its task only partially accomplished.

Reports were received from various sub-commissions.

The Bureau approved the reports from the Economic Sub-Commission on indirect protectionism and co-ordination in production and marketing. Both these subordinate bodies unanimously agreed that the

Mr. Neville Chamberlain and (right) Mr. George Lansbury. Mr. Lansbury urged Government control of currency in the House of Commons yesterday.

AMERICAN BOOM DANGER

LOST PURCHASING POWER

HIGH QUARTERS ANXIOUS

WASHINGTON, JULY 10.

Significant corroboration of the anxiety of President Roosevelt and Brig.-General Johnson lest the rise in prices has outstripped the public's purchasing power was provided to-day.

In the course of the Federal Reserve Board's Report on market conditions it is stated that the value of department store sales in 201 towns during the month of June was four per cent. lower than in June, 1932, despite the swift rise in the manufacturing wholesale business in the last two months.

It means that the actual turnover of goods in bulk had been much less.

SLUMP IN DOLLAR.

Meanwhile, the marked slump in the dollar which is an important contributory factor continues.

The morning trading was active in a thin market, but later things quietened down, the American dollar hardening at 4.79 to the pound, only seven points off parity.

Both brokers and bankers profess ignorance regarding the specific cause of the dollar's weakness, but they suggest that it may be attributable to speculation and to a minor flight of American capital in a very thin market, where even small deals will cause a fluctuation in the rate.

Some quarters suggest that if the domestic price level of 1924/25 is reached, then a sixty-cent gold dollar is probable as compared with to-day's 69.26 cents.—Reuter.

CLOSING FIGURE.

New York, July 10.
The American Dollar closed at 4.79 7/8 on the Wall Street Exchange to-day.—Reuter.

VIENNA BANK SCARE

MISTAKE BY A CLERK

VIENNA, JULY 8.

Great excitement was caused on Tuesday morning in the Austrian National Bank when alarms began to shriek and armed guards rushed through the building to occupy their posts at the seven entrances, the heavy steel gates of which had in the meantime been closed automatically. The counter shutters were likewise dropped and nobody was permitted to enter or leave the building until it was discovered that the alarm had been caused by an official in the cashier's office who, by mistake, had pushed a button setting in motion the alarm system, which thus proved its

MACAO D.P.W. LEAVING SHORTLY

COL. MONTEIRO'S GOOD WOK

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, July 10.
The early departure of Col. Schiappa Monteiro, who has been the Director of the Public Works Department at Macao for several years and as such has contributed a great deal to so much recent activity at Macao, will be noted with more than ordinary interest. Hongkong has, in recent years, paid great attention to the development of its little neighbour Macao, and in no sphere of activity has the interest been greater than with the development of public works.

For Macao, during Col. Schiappa's administration in the dual capacity of Director of the Public Works Department and the Port Works, has been developed and improved on a large scale. The traffic problem which is now engaging more than ever the attention of the authorities, has been greatly relieved by the opening of new avenues, widening of the narrow roads, making alignments of tortuous streets, and resurfacing with cement concrete or asphalt the principal thoroughfares of the colony. The planting of shrubs and trees in the city, whenever possible, has also engaged the attention of the Public Works Department so to make this city more attractive.

WATER PROBLEM.

It is unfortunate but true to state that during recent years the local government has not been able to dispose of sufficient means for much needed public works, for the Central Government has demanded more money from the colonies for loan services. Despite such a situation, Col. Schiappa did not diminish any of his efforts with the limited resources

Three Days on Chocolate Biscuits

LIEUT. MATTERN'S ORDEAL

MOSCOW, JULY 10.

Extreme fatigue and lack of knowledge of the country is believed to have been the cause of Lieut. James Mattern's crash in Siberia in the course of his World flight. It is learned that he lived for three days on chocolate biscuits which he was carrying, and when these had been exhausted, experienced the greatest difficulty in securing food.—Reuter.

MATTERN OFFERED NEW MACHINE

Juneau, Alaska, July 10.
Lieut. James Mattern, the American round-the-world flyer who was lost for nearly a month in northern Siberia and who was rescued a few days ago, will resume his flight in a plane belonging to the rescue expedition. The sponsors of the expedition have cabled its leader to fly an aeroplane to Anadir and hand it over to Mattern.

The leader will be flown home in a Soviet plane later.—Reuter.

ANOTHER KIDNAPPING OUTRAGE

24 Year-Old American's Life Threatened

ALBANY, JULY 10.

The Police have learned that the 24 year-old John O'Connell, a relative of the O'Connell brothers, well-known Democratic leaders, was kidnapped on July 7.

A ransom of G.$250,000 is demanded by the kidnappers, who threaten to shoot the captive if the police are called in.—Reuter.

that the local government could contribute for public works. He made the best use of the little there was and it is gratifying to state that during his term in the office many important works were completed in Macao.

With Col. Schiappa's technical advice and encouragement he helped in the solution of the problem of the water supply for the colony, a problem which occupied the attention of so many of his predecessors.

His attention went farther, for measures were adopted to dredge the channels of both the inner and the outer ports so as to maintain a draught sufficient for Hongkong and Canton Lines and other shipping.

It is safe to say that Col. Schiappa occupies a conspicuous place amongst recent directors of Public Works at Macao, and he leaves Macao on the expiry of his term of service with a fine record of achievement. Col. Schiappa's efforts with the limited resources

Local Protests Reach London

LONDON, JULY 10.

"I am perfectly certain that the Hongkong Government has no intention of using the Bill for any revolutionary purpose," declared Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies was replying to questions by Mr. Wardlaw Milne, who has been showing marked interest in the Hongkong Foreshore and Sea-Bed Works Ordinance.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister stated that as a result of correspondence with the Governor (Sir William Peel), certain amendments had been made to the Ordinance, and the matter was still under consideration.

He added that the Bill for General Powers was subject to very special conditions regarding compensation.—Reuter.

GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

In simple language, the Ordinance provides general powers to take over re-claimed land for public works.

Enquiries at the Colonial Secretary's Office this morning elicited the information that the chief purpose of the ordinance was to permit the Government to resume marine land for public purposes without being compelled to promote a special Bill for each project.

The Praya East Reclamation was the last subject of a special Bill and the Foreshore and Sea-Beds Ordinance is designed to obviate needless delay and expense.

PRIVATE RIGHTS.

The Hongkong Chamber of Commerce and the China Association in London are both materially interested in the Government's Bill which has encountered certain difficulties on the question of private rights, compensation, and the power of the authority to override private rights.

The Bill was sent Home in its final form in May for consideration and if approved, will come before the Legislative Council.

POPULATION OF GERMANY

BERLIN, JULY 8.

The population of the German Reich is now estimated at 65,200,000, according to provisional figures taken from the recent census. This figure includes 630,000 inhabitants in the Saar district. The population of the old German Empire was numbered at 60,000,000, but the latest census shows an increase of 2,700,000.

Hair Too Oily? Try These Remedies

They Take Up the Slack in Hollywood

Lorena Layson

Hollywood.—There are as many styles in slacks as there are in girls who wear them, these warm days.

Lorena Layson has a lounging suit of henna flannel slacks and double-breasted unlined jacket that have a Spanish note in the peaked front of the trousers. She wears white tuck-in shirts with them, in cotton mesh.

Constance Bennett, wears blue slacks and a white silk blouse with a very fine diagonal blue stripe. Also a blue beret.

Janet Gaynor, wore tailored pyjamas made of navy blue toweling in one-piece style, with white linen collars and cuffs.

Claire Trevor, wore a two-piece bathing suit of yellow and brown gingham, lined with yellow jersey. When they came out of the water she slipped into slacks of the gingham.

COOL AND CHIC!

Linen Suits Will Be Summer Favourites

By Joan Savoy

Whether you work, play, ride, drive, go to races or come to town, you are going to have to get into linen this summer, if you want to be smart.

Black linen ensembles are favoured. But when those first scorching days come, it's the white linen things that will touch your grateful heart. There's something so everlastingly fresh and cool looking about white linen.

This season the non-crushable quality takes the last hurdle out of the linen race. Get it so that it doesn't need pressing eternally and there's nothing like it.

One of the smarter of the white linen suits has the new swagger coat, classically simple, with a built-up skirt that flares just enough. There is a handsome trifle of a linen blouse, in Neapolitan stripes, with the new bag neckline and a tie, of course. Top it with a little linen hat.

long before, fall comes again. But too much oil is as bad as too little.

There are various shampoos, tonics and lotions which correct oily conditions. So does a good old-fashioned massage night and morning with the finger tips. Avoid too frequent shampooing if your hair has a tendency toward oiliness. Every ten days should be often enough to wash it. If it gets unbearably oily between washings try one of the dry shampoos.

Rubbing your hair vigorously with a rough bath towel each night after you have massaged the scalp will go far toward removing excess oil. This is a treatment which requires morning-after-morning work. You can't do it just once or twice and hope to get good results.

Oily hair takes a permanent beautifully but when it comes to retaining the wave and staying set the reverse is true. So why not begin at once to get rid of the oil?

If you haven't already learned to massage your scalp properly here's the right way. Place your elbows on a table with your head in your hands. Now move your scalp and not your fingers. Keep it up for ten minutes each night and see the improvement in a few weeks.

For the Late-Comers

Boiled meats are your best bet on the nights when you simply don't expect all of your family to arrive on time for dinner. The meat can be put into the boiler after the tardy ones arrive and be freshly cooked when they are ready to eat it.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Gay and colourful Vienna of more than a century ago is the setting for "Congress Dances," the Ufa operatic satire which is now showing at the Central Theatre.

It is a Vienna of wine, song, gaiety and intrigue, and all of these elements are cleverly interwoven in this continental screen production, one that seems destined to enjoy a long and profitable run.

The story has to do with the royal intrigues of the days of Napoleon, then banished to Elba. The rulers of Austria, Russia, France and other countries naturally are concerned over the fate of Bonaparte and either in person or through high diplomatic representatives gather in Vienna to decide the vanquished Napoleon's fate.

Austria's Chancellor, Prince Metternich, cleverly portrayed by Conrad Voldt, is determined that he shall remain in exile and exerts every means to keep Czar Alexander of Russia from the congress called in the Austrian capital.

Despite the efforts of the enchanting Lillian Harvey, as Christel, the glove-shop girl, and Lil Dagover, as the alluring Comtesse Metternich, fails to keep Alexander from the conference and the Congress dance, but the infatuation of the Russian emperor for the delightful shopgirl finally carries the day for the Chancellor, whose joy, however, is short-lived, as word comes announcing Napoleon's escape.

"Hell Below"

"Hell Below," the submarine adventure film which caused widespread comment during its long run at the Astor Theatre in New York City, comes on Thursday to the Queen's Theatre giving local filmgoers a chance to view what is said to be the most thrilling marine spectacle ever to reach the talkies.

Robert Montgomery heads the cast of "Hell Below," in what critics concede to be the outstanding role of his career. As the young lieutenant who falls hopelessly in love with a woman already married, he is precipitated into a stirring series of occurrences in which he disobeys the orders of his submarine commander in an effort to save his friend adrift at sea and target for the guns of a squadron of airplanes, is dishonorably dismissed from the service after unwittingly causing the entire crew, a narrow escape from a horrible death at the bottom of the ocean, and finally vindicates himself before both his commander and the woman he loves in a heroic gesture in which he forfeits his life.

Walter Huston, who recently contributed a memorable portrayal to the screen as the President in "Gabriel Over the White House," has another stirring role as the submarine commander, and the ace cast also includes such notable film names as Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young.

One camera was operated with the aid of a periscope so that scenes above the water were actually recorded inside one of the submarine. Interior sequences of the production were made at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, where a complete replica of the submarine which had served as a basis of operations in Honolulu was reconstructed.

PLANT.

THE "SANTAPE" METHOD EXPLAINED.

The plant consists of the most up-to-date and efficient mechanical apparatus, including a number of "SANTAPE" machines which seal the tablets hygienically in specially prepared wax paper compartments.

This system is known as the modern HYGIENIC "SANTAPE" method of packing, and because of its thoroughly protective properties, ensures that "ASPRO" retains its original high standard of purity. This should serve to commend "ASPRO" to all who appreciate the absolute necessity of purity in medicine.

The wonderful human-like "SANTAPE" machines are one of the most ingenious and highly developed engineering triumphs of modern times. The machines wrap the tablets with unerring regularity in waxed paper, divide the paper into separate compartments, crimp each compartment so that no air can find access to the tablet, fold the tape, and finally pass them through sprays of paraffin wax, effectively sealing the "SANTAPE," and rendering the tablets proof against damp, moisture and any form of contamination.

ELIMINATION OF HANDLING

The "SANTAPE" method of packing has a distinct advantage over the crude and obsolete system of hand packing. At no time during the process of manufacturing, compressing and packing, do "ASPRO" Tablets come in contact with the human hand, therefore, contamination from this source is entirely prevented, the tablets reaching the consumer in the same perfect hygienic state as when they left the tabletting machines.

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. "ASPRO" has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

PROCESS.

The production of Acetyl-Salicylic Acid in its really purest form is a difficult and expensive process, requiring the services of highly skilled chemists. The cruder forms of this product contain free Salicylic Acid, which is expressly forbidden in the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. The unskilled tablet maker may start with a pure drug, but by lack of the latest knowledge may turn out tablets containing free Salicylic Acid, liberated during the process necessary to prepare the powder for compression. We make the following positive claim for "ASPRO" tablets: THEY ARE MADE FROM BRITISH MANUFACTURED "ACETYL-SALICYLIC ACID, FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID AND CONFORMING TO THE TESTS OF ALL KNOWN AUTHORITIES. THE TABLETS ARE MADE BY PROCESSES WHICH ENSURE THAT THEY ARE OF THE SAME STANDARD OF PURITY AS THE ORIGINAL DRUG, AND CONTAIN NO TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID. NO CHALK, TALC OR OTHER MINERAL IS USED AS AN EXCIPIENT, WHICH IN "ASPRO" TABLETS IS A HIGHLY REFINED FOOD PRODUCT.

HOW TO TAKE 'ASPRO' FOR COLDS & FLU

"ASPRO" makes positive, definite and clear claims that it will relieve an Influenza or Cold attack in one night and it proves it. You can prevent "Flu" by taking 2 "ASPRO" Tablets at the first sign of a Cold, and 2 tablets every three hours afterwards until the symptoms disappear; a hot lemon or whisky drink to be taken with the last dose before going to bed. It is advisable when taking "ASPRO" for Influenza and Colds to keep the body warmly clad in order to prevent chill. The value of "ASPRO" for Influenza was proved in Australia when the Pneumonic Influenza Plague ravaged the country, and the Federal Parliament proclaimed "ASPRO" a Necessary Commodity in the public interest.

for such successes as "Sunny Side Up," "Delicious" and "Down to Earth," wrote the story and directed the picture, which will be screened at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

They meet as the result of the arrest of a six year-old youngster accused of stealing milk to feed a horde of hungry cats and discover they were schoolboy sweethearts. Their romance gets a fresh start, but obstacles menace their happiness and, following a misunderstanding, they part. How they are reunited through the intervention of a pair of precocious youngsters, instrumental in eliminating sinister influences, is the basis of what is said to be an intriguing plot.

"She Done Him Wrong"

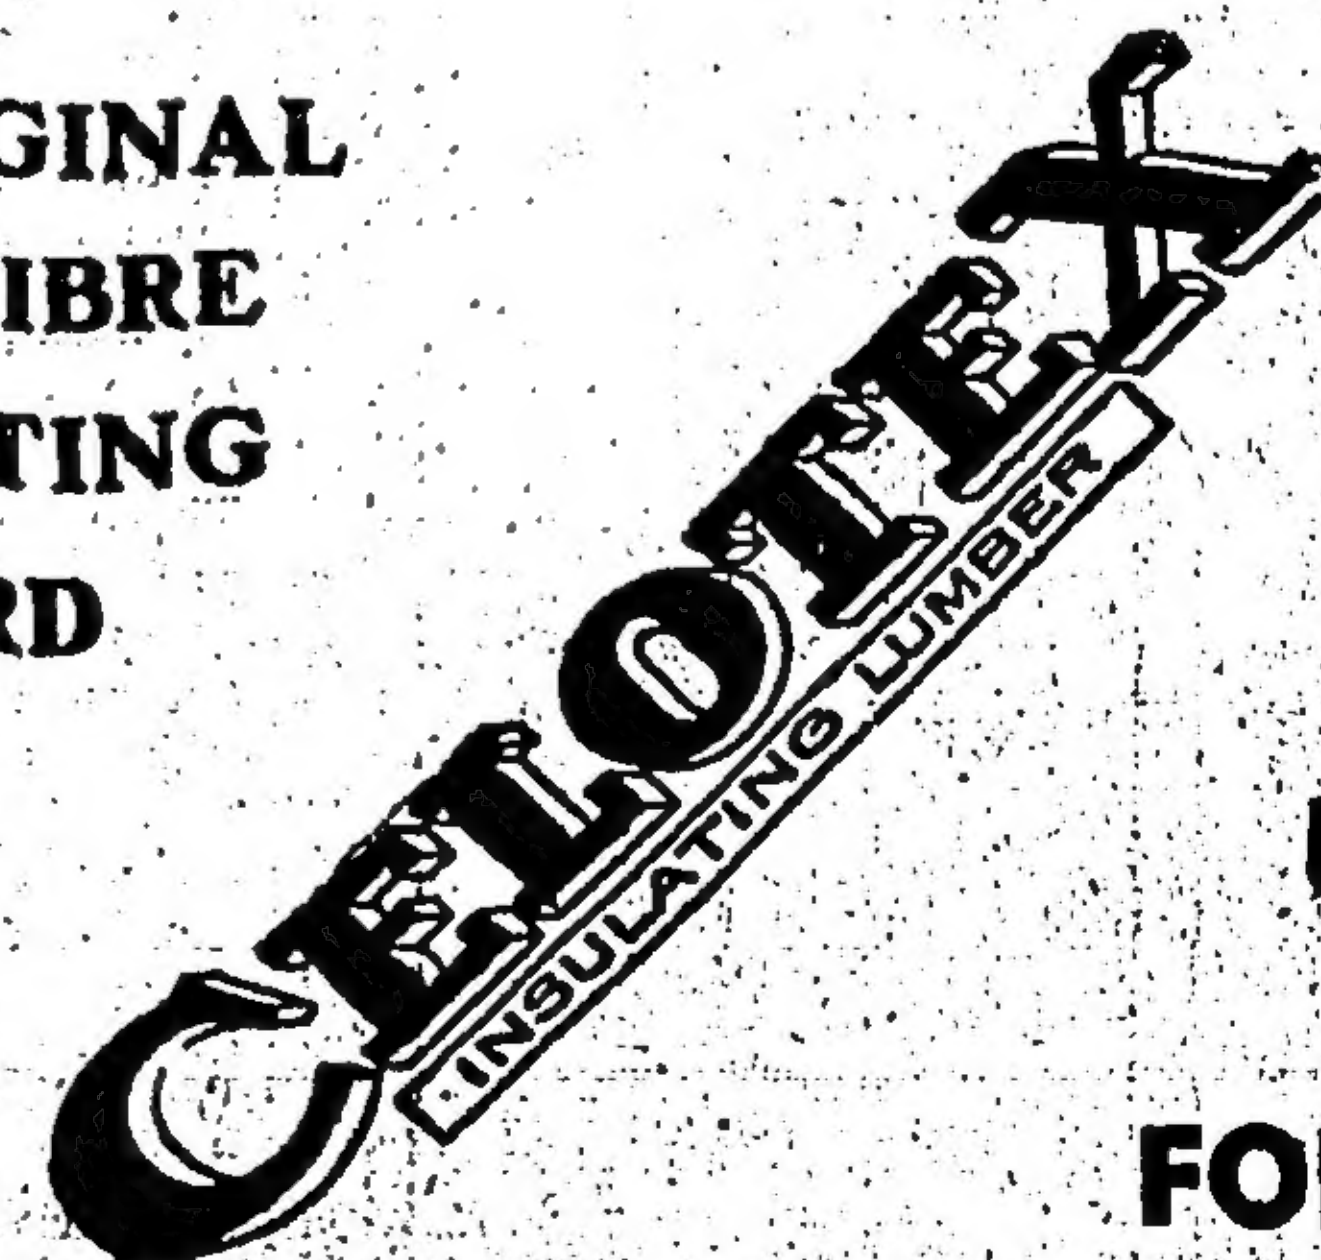

Mae West makes her debut as a screen star in "She Done Him Wrong," a lusty melodrama which she herself wrote, and which is showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

"She Done Him Wrong" is a story of the New York Bowery, with its collection of wide-open saloons, wise guys, and frivolous dames. It centres around a singer known as "Lady Lou," who has a way with men and who accepts their attention in return for diamonds. Her collection of gems, so great is her popularity, is ransom for half a dozen kings.

Miss West appears in that role. Noah Beery is the saloon-keeper who is furnishing the jewels at the moment. Cary Grant is ostensibly the head of a nearby Mission, who turns out to be as susceptible to her charms as any of the natives of the district. A startling, dramatic climax follows their mutual discovery of this fact.

"RACKETEERING"
IN HONGKONG?

The startling drop in the sales of Government Monopoly opium is gathering pace rather than improving, despite the intensive campaign directed towards the suppression of the divan. The latest figures, which we believe to be reliable, show that the revenue from this source has dropped to below $2,000 daily, less than a sixth of the gross income from sales prior to the adoption of the new policy. The significance of this cannot be lost. If the decrease in sales represented a decrease in consumption, the Colony could bear it with an approving smile, but it simply means that smokers are leaving one kind of opium which they do not want because it is dearer than and inferior to another. It also means that they are able to get the cheaper and better brand. Since we last examined the situation, which has arisen from the closing of the Hongkong factory, it has developed features which are sufficient to cause grave concern.
The smuggling organisation is perfecting its system and a problem is being created for the Colony very closely approaching that of the United States under Prohibition. In a milder fashion, it has always existed.
To-day, with only unwanted opium legally obtainable, it has been intensified tenfold. In its different way, the situation bears an astonishing resemblance to the American scene under the operation of the Volstead Act.
The moonshine stills are represented by illicit opium boiling "factories." Smoking dens are as numerous as speak-easies.
The only thing missing is "racketeering" and it is not at all certain that the Colony will not experience the "racket" accompaniment to the game of defeating the Revenue Officer.
With a craving greater and more dangerous than alcoholic liquor to cater for, the emergence of rival gangs seems a logical outcome. We are not creating a bogey. Stories of "protection" in certain areas have already reached us. The ease with which illicit opium is obtainable in clubs and boarding-houses is astonishing. It also suggests a line of investigation which might be pursued with advantage by the authorities if they are not too busy to do so seriously.

NOTES OF THE DAY

World Economic Conference prospects look a trifle brighter this morning. No decision was reached upon the all-important issue of the scope of the monetary discussions, but the gold countries agreed to examine the problem generally with a view to the drafting of an agenda. This represents a distinct advance. The gold countries are, at least, prepared to listen to the arguments of the other side. This is the mood in which mutual concessions are most likely to be obtained. The problems were debated in the House of Commons but they provided only one interesting feature, a hint from Mr. Neville Chamberlain that the British Government would be prepared to consider a return to the gold standard or an international monetary standard.

THE CABARET PROBLEM

Much has been heard about cabarets lately, chiefly complaints of residents who nightly suffer from the symphonic (!) blarings of the bands. On the other hand, there has been a complete, almost painful, silence on the part of Government concerning the proposed Cabaret Regulations. Two months ago we were promised them
"in a fortnight." The promise is still a "debt unpaid" on the legislative account of the Hon. Mr. G. C.
Alabaster. In the meantime, a Kowloon resident has appealed to the Court for assistance, and has been politely, but not at all convincingly, told that pending the proposed "regulations," nothing can be done to alleviate the position.
There has been ample time for action. Residents have a right to some sort of protection, whilst the cabarets are at present in an invidious position. For their own sakes they would prefer to know exactly what is to be their status, what privileges (if any) they are to enjoy, and to what extent they are to be subject to control.

JAPANESE DUMPING

The chorus of complaint against the dumping of Japanese goods is swelling. New Zealand, Germany and Australia have added their protests in the last three days, although what satisfaction they are likely to obtain, it is difficult to imagine. Japan is the one country which has maintained a reasonably high level of prosperity during the world-wide depression. Her exports have increased since 1929 when those of all other countries have diminished on a rapidly growing scale. To invite her to stop selling, is to invite her to surrender her business activity.
The complaints of unfair competition may be fully justified. Her answer is that despite the allegation that she is selling below cost of production, her national wealth is increasing rapidly. Japan seems to have discovered the secret that while the value of newly produced goods exceeds that of goods and commodities consumed, there is little to worry about nationally.

TOMATOES AND PATRIOTISM

One of the queerest cases the Indefatigable American Civil Liberties Union has yet tackled would seem to be that of the labour agitator who has been accused of defil-ing the American flag. He was addressing a meeting, suitably beflagged and decorated, when a group of ex-service men showered the speaker with ancient eggs, de-cayed tomatoes and such like. The charge against him says he used an American flag to wipe from his face stray bits of squashed tomatoes and trickling eggs which took lodgement there. His defenders retort that he wiped his face with a handkerchief, and that the flag was defiled by the flying missiles themselves. But even if the charge was true, it is difficult to get indignant about it. A man who gets an uncooked tomato omelet in the face is likely to wipe it off in a hurry, and to use the first thing that he can lay his hands on.

TICKET TO MONECOPOLIS

No better example of the way human thought runs to extremes can be seen perhaps than in the recent ideas which have been advanced about the city of the future. Mr. Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect, has gone to one extreme with his vision of the broad-acre city, where every family would have its acre of ground and everybody would be back to nature again. And now the prediction is made that the city of the future will be "a monecopolis, a single, vast, unburnable, high building, whose corridors are streets, and whose light, ultraviolet, and ventilation are entirely artificial." This monster called monecopolis, it seems, is the inevitable outcome of progress, the progress which is making possible the conditioning of air, the building of windowless factories, and other modern developments. But who that looks forward to the morning stroll from home to office would give this up for the artificial comfort and convenience of the monecopolis?

PLANNED PRICE LEVELS

Banking Privilege is To-day the Subject of Attack from All Quarters in Discussions on the World's Economic Problems. Below is the first instalment of the other side of the question, as outlined by Mr. Benjamin M. Anderson, the Economist of the Chase National Bank. He subjects President Roosevelt's programme to critical examination.

NO. 1

We must be clear as to our objectives. To my mind, the great and vital problem confronting the United States and the world to-day is that of getting many millions of men back to work, getting business going again, getting goods moving throughout the country and throughout the world, increasing enormously the volume of production in the world, so that the volume of consumption may also be greatly increased. But among the proposals which purport to have this economic revival for an objective there are not a few which really look toward different ends. There are, as usual, social revolutionaries who like to fish in troubled waters, who would seek radically to recast the whole economic system, to shatter the sorry scheme of things and "then re-mould it nearer to the heart's desire."

Whatever else measures of this sort might accomplish, they would not, in the near future, restore production and consumption in the world, or set men to work. And there are many more moderate proposals which, while they might or might not be meritorious in themselves, if adopted in the troubled time when the general economic machinery is functioning well, would, none the less, interfere with economic revival if adopted today. There are schemes for the re-distribution of wealth, which schemes may or may not have merit, considered as long pull measures, but they certainly are not revival measures.
There are other proposals, growing out of the righteous anger of honest men who have discovered iniquity, which are punitive in their nature, and which can easily go so far as to impair the efficiency of existing economic machinery which is necessary to facilitate revival. We must be clear as to our objectives. If, as an incident to revival measures, or if,
as contributing to revival measures,
we can end old abuses and can improve the general economic system, so much the better. But we must not permit the present unhappy state of the world and the present flux of bewildered political opinion to be capitalized by those who advocate new and untested economic theories in the making of hazardous experiments.
This sick economic world of ours is a patient in a hospital, not a subject for experimentation in a laboratory. And if, as I believe is the case, we can cure this patient by tried and tested measures, surely we have no right to discard those tried and tested measures and to turn the patient over to a new school of physicians who have some theories that have never been known to work.

In medicine, when radical new measures are proposed, it is at least the common practice to try them, out on animals first, and then, after long and careful experimentation, to try them tentatively on human beings.
We must certainly ask the new schools of economic practitioners to try things out on a small-scale first, tentatively and cautiously, before they ask us to transform the whole economic system radically.

OLD AND NEW ECONOMICS.

We have heard a great deal about the failure of the so-called old economics, and the need for new doctrines. I think it can safely be said that there has been no failure of the old economics in this past war period, because, so little of what the old economics advocates has been done.
The old economics taught, and teaches,
that tariffs should not be unduly high,
and that goods should move with reasonable freedom across national borders. The past war period has seen a steadily mounting body of tariffs and other trade barriers, choking the flow of goods across national borders.

The old economics taught that excessive credit and artificially cheap money would generate great speculation and the piling up of unsound debts which could not be paid and which,
in their qualitative, deterioration and collapse, would create crisis and panic.
But we spent the past war years, especially from 1922 into 1928, in an altogether unprecedented expansion of credit at artificially low interest rates, with rediscount rates held below the market instead of above the market as the old rules prescribed, and we generated a credit bubble and a speculative bubble, the collapse of which has brought us untold disaster.

John Stuart Mill knew the dangers both of excessive tariffs and of excessive credit. No new economics was needed to avert them.

The old economics taught that international debts must be paid primarily with goods and services. It taught that the debtor country, in the period when it was borrowing, would have an import surplus, but that when it began to repay, it must have an export surplus, sending out more goods than it consumed, and it taught that a creditor country, when the time came to receive payments, must receive an import surplus, a so-called adverse balance of trade. But the old economics also knew, what the new economics seems unwilling to admit, namely, that it was good for a creditor country to receive an excess of imports, that the term "adverse balance of trade" under these circumstances was a meaningless and misleading phrase. The old economics taught when goods came into a country in payment of debts they do not reduce the ability of the country to buy the products of its own labour, but, rather, increase its total income and its total consumption. The foreign goods coming in in payment of debts are sold in the creditor country, and the proceeds in money are not taken out but, rather, are turned over as income to people within the creditor country, increasing their incomes by the same amount in money as the goods which came in in payment of the debts, and leaving them with undiminished buying power for their domestic products.
But the new economics seems to be returning to seventeenth and eighteenth century policies with respect to these matters, seems to be afraid of goods, afraid of production, afraid of income, and afraid of an abundance of goods for consumption.

AGE-OLD FALLACIES.

The old economics knew very well that it was absurd to try to expect any definite equivalents in imports and exports as between two particular countries. It understood triangular and quadrangular trade. It knew that if a country's general balance of trade with the whole world was in proper adjustment to its creditor or debtor position things were going right, and that nothing need be done about it.
The new economics seems to be veer-ing strongly toward the notion that the volume of exports and imports with every particular country must be regulated, and that trade must be discouraged with every country which does not buy more from us than it sells to us. It is not pleasant to see this recrudescence of sixteenth and seventeenth century fallacies!

The old economics taught that there is no such thing as a general over-production. It taught that the power to consume grows out of the power to produce, that consumption grows out

The Very Idea!

CHILDHOOD DAYS

By Eddie "Glaxo" Kelly.

A few years ago, a gentleman named Mr. Ring Larder pinched an idea we had been cultivating from childhood and produced a book called "The Autobiography of a Wonder Man." He did it without offering the slightest excuse, and made a lot of money out of it.

Moreover, he was never punished by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty. All of which encourages us to produce herewith the first instalment of "Another Biography of Another Wonder Man."

All this we will do without any hope of monetary reward in this life and with a prayer on our lips that we will escape punishment for it in the next.

Book One.
Chapter One.
Act One.
Scene One.

We were first born into this world during a time which future historians will term memorable.
In China a civil war was raging and the stock of all bandit corporations was selling at a premium. There was a famine in Russia, a water shortage in Hongkong and a strike in Australia.
The newspapers were prophesying trouble in the Balkans and there was revolt in Mexico and Chile.
It was summer in the Southern hemisphere and by the strangest coincidence, it was, at the same time, winter in the northern hemisphere. You can see in an instant that once that there was a bright future ahead of us. We were, in fact, unique.

As we look back on those good old days, we feel a pang of regret.
The fuss they made of us! We remember poor old father calling his friends together and proudly announcing our arrival. They all clapped him on the back and said
"Good old Kelly."

"Well," said father, "Let's go and wet the baby's head."

"Leave one there for me," we called out as they trooped out to McGinty's pub.

"All right, Son" he said.

The neighbours came round to see Old Kelly's son bathed for the first time in undistilled alcohol.
We remember many of the Dad's old friends broke down and wept as they witnessed the ceremony.

In March, 1903 we met Esther.
Esther was our first sweetheart, which she will learn for the first time when she reads this. We were too young (we were only two) to know the exact wording of a formal declaration, so we kept out soul-stirring love to ourselves.

Many a night we cried ourself to sleep over Esther. The way we looked at it was that if we couldn't see Esther, our old man wasn't going to Siesta either. So we made him walk the floor.

Our second love affair was with Marion. But she was the Marion kind, if you get what we mean.

Just now we've got a date with Jennie. With a bit of luck we will be back here in time to write to-morrow's column.

of production. A man producing one commodity, as automobiles, contributes to the supply of automobiles, to be sure, but equally contributes to the demand for wheat, for silk, for cotton and for other commodities which he wants. And the man producing cotton or cotton goods contributes to a supply of these things, but also to demand for silk, for sugar,
for automobiles and for other things which he wants. The old economics recognized that things could be produced in wrong proportions, some things too much, others too little, and that then great abnormalities and distortions would come. The old economics recognized that when you had overproduction of certain things, and underproduction of other things,
the terms of exchange between them could be so deranged that the buying power of the producers of the excessive commodities would sink very low, and then even the underproduced commodities would seem to be over-produced, because they could not be sold. But it sought the remedies in better balance and better proportion, and not in a general contraction of all production. The old economics saw purchasing power growing out of production, and it held that a good equilibrium among the various elements of production meant large aggregate purchasing power, which could take care of large aggregate production. The new economics separates production and buying power. It looks on goods on the one hand as separate and independent things, and on the other hand as things which are produced for sale.

WORLD MONEY STANDARD OTHER

Different Opinions.

The Bureau agreed to the establishment of a Drafting Committee to consider the case of the sub-Commission on subsidies and commercial policy, in both of which differences of opinion are reported. This Drafting Committee will place before the Bureau the different ideas and viewpoints as expressed in the Commission discussions.

Regarding monetary questions, which are considered of supreme importance at the Conference, the Bureau agreed that the full Monetary Commission should meet at 3 o'clock to appoint a Drafting Committee, which will make recommendations to the Bureau to-morrow. While there is considerable confusion regarding the exact purport of this morning's Bureau discussions on the procedure to be adopted by the Conference, pessimism is certainly less justifiable to-day.

According to one member of the Bureau, it had been recognised that it was dangerous to divide the world into blocs and a strong endeavour would be made to find a middle course which both main divisions of the Conference will be able to follow.

This suggestion of a compromise has been heard for the past several days in many spheres, and has apparently something in foundation.

No Agreement.

A meeting of Monetary sub-Commission No. 2 to discuss re-establishment of an international monetary standard, which preceded the Bureau session, ended indecisively. No date for the sub-Commission's reassembly was set.

The delegates discussed the suggestion of Mr. Walter Elliot, on behalf of Mr. Chamberlain, that the Commission continue its work. The British spokesman argued that a return to the gold standard would be facilitated by an agreement as to principles of the working of that standard in the future.

French Opposition.

M. Bonnet of France opposed the suggestion with the now well-known contention that it was necessary first to know whether the Conference were ready to put a definite term to exchange fluctuations due to speculation.

Senator Pittman of the United States, Chairman of the Silver sub-Committee, stated that he would be in a position to report more fully on the silver question before the end of the week.

Senator Pittman later told Reuters that London believed a complete silver agreement would be reached, possibly some time this week. The main stumbling block was the deadlock with India on the subject of long term restriction of exports, and this had been overcome.

Chairman Klenck proposed that they should refer to the Bureau certain resolutions, which were unanimously supported, and which deal with four topics: first, a suggestion for the earliest possible accomplishment of stabilisation; second, that gold be the recognised standard; thirdly, that monetary gold should not be used in internal circulation; and fourthly, that the gold cover be fixed at twenty-five per cent.

The Bureau's decision to establish a Drafting Committee to consider the case of the Subsidies and Commercial Policy sub-Commission, appears to amount to the exercising by the Bureau of its over-riding powers, as the balance of opinion in these committees has been in favour of discontinuation of their discussions.

LAND ON MAINLAND
AUCTIONED.A SITE AT MATAUCHUNG
ACQUIRED BY CHINESE

A site at Matauchung, near Kowloon City, was sold by public auction at the offices of the P.W.D. yesterday. With an area of 7,130 sq. ft. it fronts Tam Kung Road, being registered as Kowloon Inland Lot No. 3270. The purchase price was $5,448.

The site is regarded as most suitable for a workshop or factory, but Mr. Wong Hoi, its new owner, was reluctant to commit himself to any definite statement of his intentions. He said it might be put to industrial use for the time being, but that later it was possible tenements would occupy the land.

A special condition of sale requires the purchaser to make rateable improvements on the land to a value of not less than $24,000, within a fixed period.

THE INFERNO"

(By H. R. Wells)

CHAPTER VIII.

The Fifth Stage

They passed on further and entered into the next grade; and on turning round a corner they saw a number of women naked and exposed except that they each had a short loin cloth to cover them. All their other articles of clothing and their ornaments and shoes were thrown together in a heap.

Cowed and lictors caught the women by their hair and pulled them into the middle of a great grindstone.

The mouth of this stone was about eighteen inches wide, large enough for one person to go in. The women wept and wailed piteously and called out loudly, "Save Life", "Help". One of them gripped the base of the grindstone and refused to move, resisting the lictors who were pulling her up to the mouth of the mill. The lictors gave a great pull and placed her head in the mouth of the mill. Her feet were pointing to the heavens and the lictors turned her and pushed her in. Most of the women were treated in this summary manner.

TERRIBLE SPECTACLE.

This spectacle was so terrible that the eye could not bear to look on it. Some of the lictors were forcing the women into the pit of the mortar, the mouth of which was about four feet wide.

The women wept bitterly and would not go down, and lay on the ground and howled and kicked.

Such cases one lictor would seize the head and another the feet of the woman, and they carried them down into the pit of the mortar. Their bodies and legs were exposed and they had only about five inches of cloth about their waists to cover their nakedness.

The great pestle came down on them and the sound of their groans of pain was lengthened out until it seemed almost continuous. Their arms and legs waved about and their flesh and blood was splashed all round the pit.

Laan Kat could not bear the sight; he turned away his face and left the place asking why the women were treated so cruelly. He said, "Speaking generally, women are of a meek and gentle disposition. They are not evil nor cruel and never commit great offences such as murdering people in great ferocity. Why then do they receive such terrible punishment?" Truly this is difficult to explain.

WHY THEY SUFFER.

Bluecoat replied, saying, "Well, as to women in the world, everyone knows their good points, but people generally do not observe their evil deeds."

"For instance, some women hate their husbands when they take concubines and they become very jealous. Such women would be willing to make the line of descent cease, and cut off the sacrifices at the family altar because there would be no son to carry on the succession unless the man took the concubine. They are angry too when their husbands spend money to support their parents, and purposely browbeat the parents and give them insufficient food and clothing."

"Besides this they do not treat the uncles of the family (including the husband's brothers) with proper respect, and are unkindly disposed to them."

In this way the near relatives become angry if they are distant relatives, and they repay kindness with enmity. In all these ways they help increase the errors and sins of their husbands, and bring trouble on later generations, bringing the family down to destruction."

"Women of this kind are not punished by the laws of the land, and it is difficult to control them by the ordinary law of the family or clan. There is only one way of dealing with such women, and bringing them to account, and that is by the pains and penalties of Hades."

"Besides these there are some women who combine together to lead people on to fornication and give themselves up to the evil practice of kidnapping and deceit. In what grade or depth of sin should they be classed?"

PUNISHMENT OF BOILING OIL.

Bluecoat then led him on to a part of the fifth grade where he saw large numbers of great furnaces from which fierce flames were belching forth, and there were large boilers over the fires in which there was a quantity of oily soup boiling up. The heat was intense and yet constantly increased.

They went near to the boilers to see what was going on, and saw numbers of people rising and falling with the bubbling soup. Some were groaning and some weeping, some were sinking and some rising; their very bones were being rotted away.

Laan Kat asked what class of sinners were subjected to this punishment, and what crimes they had committed to merit such treatment.

Bluecoat replied, saying, "Most of these people were local braves and bullies and villains," and in reply to the question as to how it was they made such fearful noises as if they felt the pain and bitterness very intensely, he said, "When people are in the world they regard the body as the nearest thing and therefore the most real, so they give all their attention to building up physical energy and the repair of blood vessels, and of skin and flesh, and omit entirely the building up of the clear and pure fabric of the spiritual part of their nature."

"Really," he said, "It is the spirit that makes men able to eat and drink and to walk about and run. It is the spirit that makes men able to ascend into heaven and to go down into the earth and to realise sorrow and joy. If their spirit should be lost, then they could not eat nor drink, nor could they go about, and whether the bones change or the whole frame disintegrate in the end they are quite useless."

PAIN OF THE SOUL.

"Even if the whole body should remain, they have a mouth but cannot speak, and ears but cannot hear, and hands which cannot move and feet which cannot walk. If you ask them anything they cannot reply, if you strike them they have no feeling and it does not hurt them."

"When they were alive and felt pain it was because their spirit was in their body. When they are dead and feel no pain it is because their soul has left the body. Now their body is not able to go about, that which now comes and goes is the shade or apparition or ghost."

"The shade body cannot eat food, but it can receive incense. The body does not make a sound, but in the stillness and silence of the night, the voice or cry of the ghost or devil may be heard."

"Dead flesh cannot feel pain but the soul can feel pain."

"Now, as the spirit has gone into the nether world that which is burnt is the soul, that which is cooked (in the oil) is the soul or spirit. The soul is whipped or beaten and as the soul is a spirit it needs to be aroused and awakened."

"The body is called dead flesh, but no one speaks of a dead soul. They talk of damaged flesh but not of rotten spirit. As the spirit cannot die it must still be existent."

"So, though the body is dead the soul goes to live in another place. It may be cooked and not destroyed, yet still the soul feels pain. You must have heard of certain people in ancient times who were decapitated. Some people said that this was a great kindness because the body would be in one place and the head in another."

SOUND DOCTRINE.

"People in the world only know that there are headless devils; they do not know that there are headless gods."

"It may be possible that faithful sons, loyal ministers, righteous husbands and chaste wives may not be able to avoid calamities; they may go to their death with naked swords before them. After their death would they become idols or gods? Could they then have a body with no head? So it is quite clear that though the head of the body may be cut off, the head of the soul cannot be cut off."

"If the head be amputated it cannot be again joined to the body, but in the case of the shade or the soul it can be united as silk threads running through water may be connected, or as tobacco which is cut by a knife."

"If this were not so then there would be cases of disembodied persons in hell, and of people whose tongues were cut out. If there were cases of this kind, when the punishment was fulfilled and the soul was sent into the world in another form, then the tongue would have no taste, and the stomach would not be satisfied."

Ting Laan-kat jumped up and clasped his hands, saying, "This is a most excellent discourse and most sound doctrine. It is not surprising that you, sir, were a scholar in your former existence. You have excited my mind and illuminated my heart. It is like the saying, 'To talk with you for half a day is better than studying in a school for ten years getting an ordinary education.' I will go home now."

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
FIRM

According to Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co., the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done 4,840,000 shares. Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co. report:—Instead of a sharp reaction it is quite possible that the market may drift awhile. Reactionary advice are quite general; at the same time there seems to be general urge to sell at a correction. It is difficult to see what influence there is to cause the unloading of long stocks in volume. Wheat: Renewed inflation and buying met with a little resistance. Beneficial rates are reported in Canada and the Dakotas. The Government report is considered as bullish. Cotton: Strong all day. Demand has been large and offerings limited. The recent realising strengthened the technical position. Silver: On account of the wide disparity between New York and London there has been considerable buying here, and selling abroad. Shanghai is reported to be doing this.

SEVEN DROWNED

VESSELS COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG

Shanghai, July 10. Seven members of the crew of the s.s. Tunan, operated by the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, were drowned when the vessel was sunk in a collision with the s.s. Chosun Maru of the Dairen Steamship Company to-day.

The collision occurred during a heavy fog off Shantung Peninsula at 3.50 o'clock in the morning. The Chosun Maru left Tsingtao yesterday evening for Dairen. At the time of the collision she was proceeding cautiously through the blanket of fog.

After the impact the Tunan settled and sank quickly. Lifeboats from the Chosun Maru were lowered at once and made haste to the rescue. They succeeded in picking up thirty-five members of the crew of the Tunan and twenty-five passengers, but seven are known to have been drowned.

Among the missing are an officer, two sailors and four stewards.—Reuters.

DEARY VARSITY CRICKET

WICKET HELPS BOWLERS

D.F. WALKER'S INNINGS

London, July 10. One of the dreariest openings in the history of the annual inter-Varsity cricket matches was witnessed to-day under conditions dull to begin with, but which improved later in the day.

Oxford spent all day scoring 126 runs and losing seven wickets in the bargain.

EFFECT OF THE SUN.

But no cognisance was taken of the likely effects of the later sun, and in the afternoon, Oxford found themselves fighting for runs against a keen attack which took full advantage of the wicket now made tricky by the sun.

Only D. F. Walker, the Varsity's opening bat, shaped with any confidence against the Cambridge bowlers, and he played gallantly to score 46.—Reuter.

22 FALLS AT TENNIS

MISS HEELEY LOSES DRAMATIC GAME

There was a remarkable match at Beckenham in the Kent Lawn Tennis Championships.

Miss Mary Heeley, England's number one ranking player, was beaten in straight sets by Miss Nancy Lyle, at 6-1, 9-7.

What made the match remarkable was the complete inability of Miss Heeley to keep her foot-hold. She fell 22 times during the two sets, and many of the falls were heavy ones. But, on every occasion, she got up with cheery good humour and she never once held up the play.

Miss Lyle did not fall once. After winning the first set easily, Miss Lyle led at 4-2 in the second, but Miss Heeley then played fine lawn tennis to lead at 5-4 and 6-5. Miss Lyle maintained the even excellence of her game and went out at 9-7.

LORD TENNYSON

KEPT OUT OF TEAM BY SCORPION BITE

A bite from a scorpion in the West Indies 16 months ago prevented Lord Tennyson, captain of Hampshire, from leading his side against Somerset at Portsmouth three weeks ago.

Lord Tennyson has suffered intermittently from the effects of the bite, and returned from a cruise on which he was convalescing after blood-poisoning.

"I was bitten on the hand by the scorpion when we were playing in the West Indies the winter before last," he told a reporter. "It caused some infection, and I was laid up with blood-poisoning this spring. I am fairly fit again now, but the doctor will not let me play until we meet Warwickshire."

CORINTH & THE CUP

Meeting or Ballot of Members?

CLUB'S FUTURE AT STAKE

"Can Corinth be saved?" This is the question asked by thousands of the famous amateur club's well-wishers since the executive forwarded a letter to the Football Association resigning from the F.A. Cup competition.

It is generally felt that this action virtually means condemning to extinction a club of glorious traditions, a club which on two occasions supplied England en bloc with a full international eleven and which has rendered inestimable service to the game in Europe.

Several Corinthians had not been consulted on the matter, and they all disagreed with the committee's action.

One famous member of the club, who is the possessor of several amateur "caps" described the excuse given for not wishing to play in the first round as "feeble in the extreme." "Varsity men," he declared, "are usually much too inexperienced for this class of football, and as far as schoolmasters are concerned there could never be any difficulty about their getting leave—even for a mid-week replay—for such an honourable achievement as playing for Corinth in the Cup."

ACTION DEPLORED.

Another—a county cricketer—was much concerned that the general public might think the resignation an unsporting action.

Judging from correspondence and from the chatter at the Kingstonian celebration dinner (which was attended by several Soccer notabilities), the football public deplore the Corinthian committee's action. "Are they afraid of meeting us?" asked a member of Kingstonian who as amateur Cup-holders are also exempt until the first round.

Since Corinth first entered the competition practically their whole source of income has been derived from the F.A. Cup. With this revenue removed, it is difficult to see how they can carry on. Their men are domiciled all over the country—one member actually comes over from Ireland to play—and no club has greater proportionate travelling expenses.

The Corinthian club is limited to 50 members and if a general meeting were called or a ballot taken, it is not for a moment believed that they would withdraw from the Cup because they were asked to compete in the first round.

FOOTBALL LAWS REVISED

Corinthians' F.A. Cup Withdrawal

An alteration to Law 17, regarding the award of penalty kicks, was sanctioned at the annual meeting of the International Football Association in Portugal last month. The law now reads:

A penalty kick can be awarded irrespective of the position of the ball if in play at the time the offence is committed.

The motion by Ireland that Law 12 be altered was passed. It now reads:

A player having left the field of play from this or any other cause, may only return when the ball has ceased to be in play, and must report to the referee.

The Board decided that International Board meetings can be held in Continental cities other than Paris.

"Out, Caught Umpire"

HOW ACTRESSES PLAY CRICKET

Defeated by Scorer

Dr. A. J. Cronin, author of "Hatter's Castle," had the unique misfortune of being adjudged "Out, et Umpire," in the Actresses v. Authors cricket match at The Elms, Hampstead, recently.

The match afforded a striking glimpse of the nature of cricket under the influence of the Brighton Cricket Reformers, particularly when a ball loaded so as to bounce incorrectly was "secretly" introduced by one of the umpires, Mr. Bobby Hoves.

Hongkong Baseball Club to Meet South China.

The baseball game between the Hongkong Baseball Club and South China scheduled for Sunday last but postponed on account of rain, will be played this afternoon at Caroline Hill at 4.30. Miss Mary Heeley,
Miss Betty Nuthall,
Miss Dorothy Round,
Miss Margaret Scriven,
and Mrs. Michell.

The Wightman Cup is to be competed for by the ladies of Great Britain and the United States at Forest Hills, on August 4 and 5 next.—Reuter.

ELLSWORTH VINES SPEAKS

"MY FORM IS SHOCKING"

Ellsworth H. Vines, who last year won the Wimbledon singles championship at the first attempt, deprecated his form when he arrived in London to defend his title.

With him were other American players—Keith Gledhill, his partner in the United States doubles championship, Lester, Stoeffler and C. Sutter.

Thirty-five rackets were in their baggage. "Listen," said Vines to a reporter, "I would not back myself in the singles for a dime. My form is shocking. I have not played a match for nearly six months, since I returned from Australia."

"I would rather win the doubles with Keith Gledhill this year, but we are much more anxious about the Davis Cup than Wimbledon. We want to take that Cup back home with us."

"Of course, if I see I have a chance at Wimbledon, you can bet I'll go for it, but the young ones [Vines is 21] are coming along, you know."

"As a result of yesterday's rain, local tennis courts were in an unplayable condition and the programme of matches arranged for the 'A' Division of the Tennis League had to be postponed."

The "A" Division has been particularly unfortunate in this respect, the postponement yesterday being about the third since the commencement of the League.

SPORT PALACE FOR LONDON

600,000 POUND BUILDING

TO HOLD 17,000 PEOPLE

Mr. Jeff Dickson, the famous boxing promoter, who is called the Tex Richard of Europe, is responsible for a project which will provide London with the largest and most completely equipped indoor sports arena in the world.

A site of over 2½ acres has been secured in Westminster, and on this will be erected the Westminster Stadium, in the heart of the British Empire, a building that will accommodate 17,000 spectators and in which every variety of sport can be staged.

This building which is to be erected on an island site between Page-street and Marsham-street, is adjacent to Lambeth Bridge.

CLEAR VIEW FOR ALL

The plans have been prepared by the well-known architect Sir Frank Baines, and one of several original features is that so far as the spectators are concerned not a single pillar or support of any description will obstruct their view.

It is estimated that the cost will be about £600,000, and in view of the forthcoming appeal to the public on the financial side, it is worth noting that the promoter has received applications for shares amounting to a sixth of this sum.

THE DIRECTORS.

The chairman of the company for which Mr. Jeff Dickson will act as managing director is Sir Harry Greer, and the co-directors are Captain Herbert Buckmaster, Major Archibald George Church, D.S.C., M.C., Mr. John Carlisle Pomeroy Mowood and the Earl of Westmorland.

The facilities will be provided for such sports as boxing, ice hockey, ice skating, cycle racing and lawn tennis.

NO CHINA LOAN

BRITAIN'S POLICY QUESTIONED

London, July 10.
 Mr. J. R. Reith to-day asked Mr. Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons whether he was aware that Mr. T. V. Speng, China's Finance Minister, was endeavouring to negotiate a large loan with London bankers. He asked, too, if the Government would seek to make conditional to such a loan, if it were contemplated, a clause that proceeds should be expended in the purchase of British goods.

Mr. Grattan Doyle asked whether authority for a loan to China would be refused until the defaulted debts of the Chinese Government, respecting railroad loans, were remedied.

Mr. Hore-Bellisha, replying, reminded the House that no foreign loans were being undertaken from London at present.

As far as he was aware, said Mr. Hore-Bellisha, no negotiations of the kind suggested were occurring.

Mr. P. J. H. Hannon asked whether the principles mentioned by

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKennev

I really believe that more points are lost annually at contract bridge through carelessness than through bad play.

You can excuse a poor play on the grounds of lack of experience, but it is difficult to excuse a careless play. Nothing but carelessness will prevent you from making a grand slam on the following hand:

The Bidding
South, the dealer, opened the contracting with one club. West, who was not vulnerable, overcalled with one diamond. North bid one spade—even though West has interposed with a bid, North's bid of one spade is still a one over one force.

North realizes that there must be a slam in the hand if South can make an original bid and is desirous of securing additional information from South, so he makes this simple one over one force. East bid two diamonds. South bids three clubs, which now eliminates the possibility of a weak club bid. West bids four diamonds, and North goes to seven clubs.

The Play
The king of diamonds was led, declarer discarding a heart from dummy and winning that trick with the ace.

Declarer could see that he could get rid of two of his losing hearts on the ace and king of hearts and one on the ace of spades. The only possible chance he had of making his contract was to establish fifth spade.

He therefore should lead the six of clubs and win in dummy with the jack, which picks up the outstanding trump. The ace of spades is played and a small heart discarded. The seven of spades is returned and trumped by the declarer—West's queen falls.

The diamond is led and trumped in dummy with a small club. Another spade is led from dummy. East plays low, and declarer should play safe and trump to make sure that West does not hold the king of spades.

A heart is now won in dummy with the ace, and the jack of spades led. If East refuses to cover with his losing heart, while if East does cover, declarer will trump and the nine of spades will be good in dummy for the needed trick.

If declarer had carelessly tried for a squeeze play instead of establishing the fifth spade, his contract would be lost.

VANITY CAUSES SUICIDES

UNUSUAL THEORY
BY DOCTOR

NOT APPLICABLE TO WOMEN

Cincinnati, Ohio.
A study of suicides in the United States as disclosed in insurance company statistics has led Dr. Muhlberg, medical director for an insurance company to conclude that masculine vanity has been at the bottom of a larger percentage of these tragedies in the last three years of the depression.

He adds that this conclusion does not apply to women.

Insurance records indicate, he claims that most of the Americans who took their lives in the last three years were men; that most of them were leaders in their communities, and that although they apparently killed themselves because of loss of money, "the majority left estates which, though greatly reduced, average considerably higher than what most people spend lives struggling to acquire."

"The thing that drives men to take their own lives, it seems," he said, "is their inability to swallow the pride they have enjoyed building during their prosperous years. It is not the haunting fear of seeing his children go hungry, or his wife weakened under the monotony of housework, so much as it is the agony

TOO CAREFUL WITH HIS MONEY

IT

Prague.
A wealthy Czechoslovak manufacturer has lost $75,000—because he was careful with his money, according to a press report.

The manufacturer's chauffeur asked for a "rise." It was refused.

Shortly afterwards the chauffeur told customs officials that while crossing the frontier into Germany that he had seen his master changing tyres and putting a packet into the spare tyre.

The spare-tyre was examined, the money was found inside and seized, and the manufacturer was arrested.

of visualizing his neighbour's glee when his twelve-cylinder super-sedan is sold and the family withdraws from the country club."

Such motives do not apply to women, he believes. "They have many outlets for their vanity, such as dress, manners, children and home, while man's vanity feeds largely upon his prowess as a material provider."—Reuter.

BEEES 9,000,000 YEARS OLD

DISCOVERY MADE

LIKE PRESENT DAY HONEY BEE

Cologne.
Evidence that bees buzzed busily about in Germany more than nine million years ago has been found by Herr Georg Statz, a Cologne teacher.

For several years past Herr Statz has delved in the tertiaries deposits near Rott, in the Seven Mountains district of the Rhineland, for fossils. Among his recent finds was a perfect impression of a bee. There is every reason to assume that the insect was but little inferior in development to the present-day honey bee.

Herr Statz has already made known his discovery to the scientific world. No one yet appears to have challenged his theory as to the age of the Rott bee.

The original impression of the bee is included in Herr Statz collection of fossils now being shown to the public at an exhibition in the city.—Reuter.

NANKING WARSHIPS ANCHOR OFF CASTLE PEAK

TSINGTAO SHIPS DISAPPEAR

EXCITEMENT IN LOCAL NAVAL CIRCLES

WISHART ON SCENE

The Hongkong naval authorities have to-day been following with the closest interest the movements of three Chinese warships of the Third Squadron, the Yat Sen, the Hai Yung and the Hai Chau, which put in an unexpected appearance in the vicinity of the Colony this morning.

The strong suspicion was aroused that they were vessels hostile to the three Tsingtao warships, which have gone over to the Canton Government and which, apparently warned of the impending arrival of the Nanking warships, have now gone up the Pearl River to Whampoa.

The Yat Sen, one of the most modern of Chinese warships, built in 1931, carrying a six-inch gun and a 5.5 inch gun, and her consorts were first sighted in the vicinity of Cheung Chau Island this morning.

They disappeared towards the mouth of the Canton River, and it would appear, having discovered that the three Tsingtao warships had disappeared, immediately put into Castle Peak Bay where they cast anchor.

The vessels, at the time of going to press, were still lying in Castle Peak Bay with full steam up.

Immediately, their arrival at Castle Peak was reported to the naval authorities, H.M.S. Moth was sent to the scene and she also anchored, between the Chinese warships and the shore.

WISHART ON SCENE.

This afternoon, H.M.S. Moth was withdrawn and H.M.S. Wishart took her place, watching the visitors, arriving at Castle Peak shortly after three o'clock.

A police launch is also lying near at hand.

It is interesting to note that the Hai Yung and the Hai Chau were two of the vessels which took part in the bombardment of Canton about ten years ago as a reprisal for the ousting of Sun Yat-sen, by his Hakka subordinate, Chan Kwing-ming. They are ships armed with three six-inch guns and eight four-inch guns.

MYSTERY VISIT.

Complete mystery surrounds their appearance, for while the general belief is that they were sent in pursuit of the Tsingtao mutineer warships, a belief confirmed by advices from Shanghai, there are reports, which are less credible, that they may be joining the mutiny.

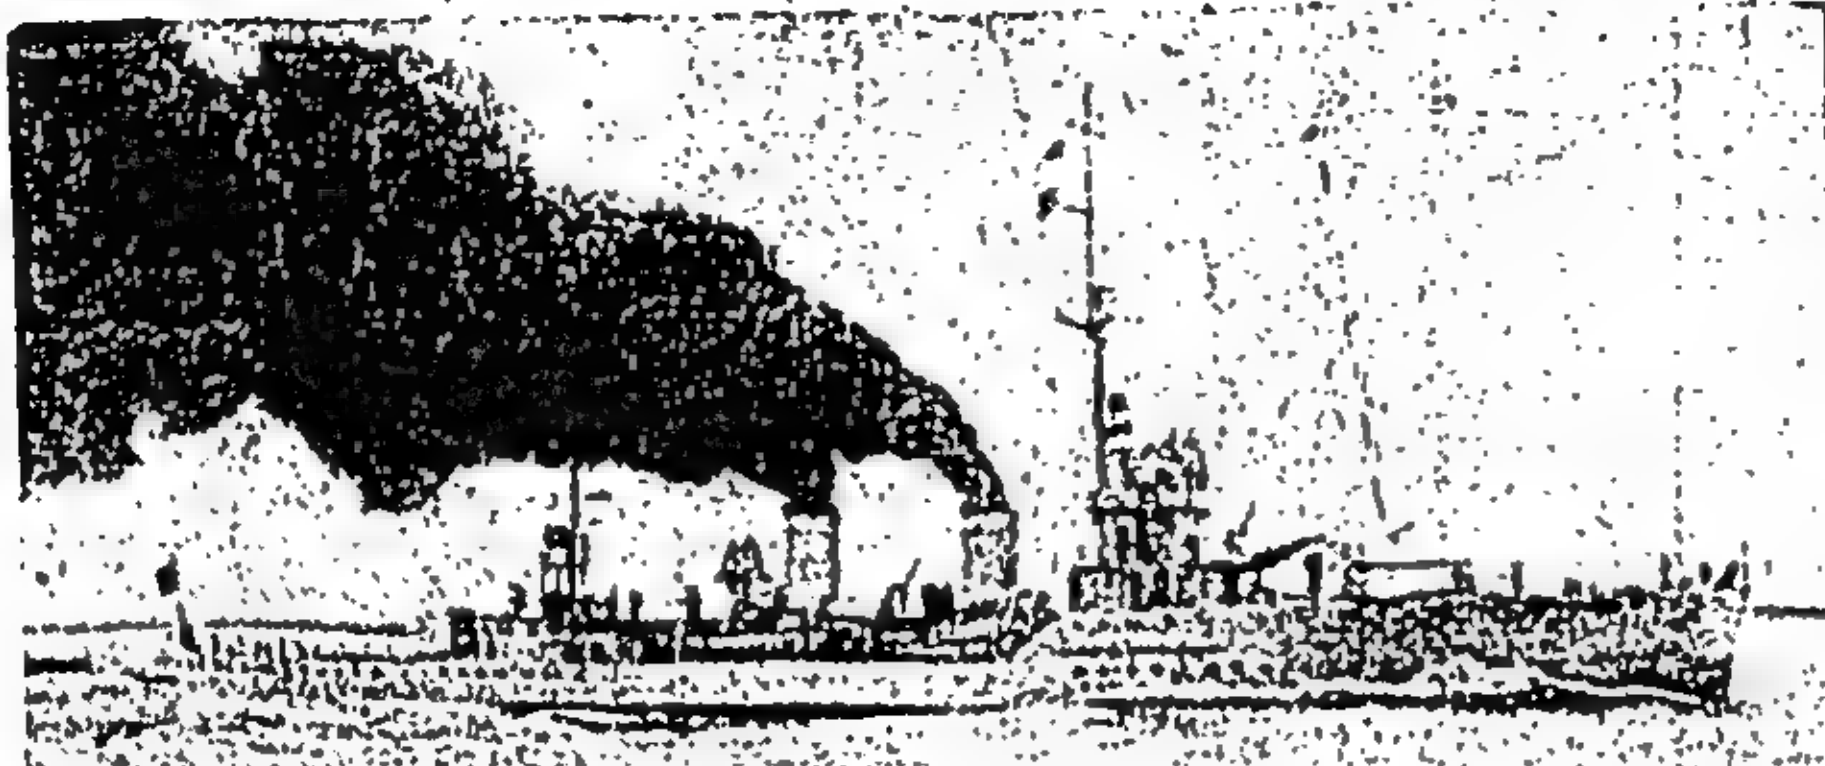

The authorities, naturally, are reticent about the subject.

POPULATION OF GERMANY

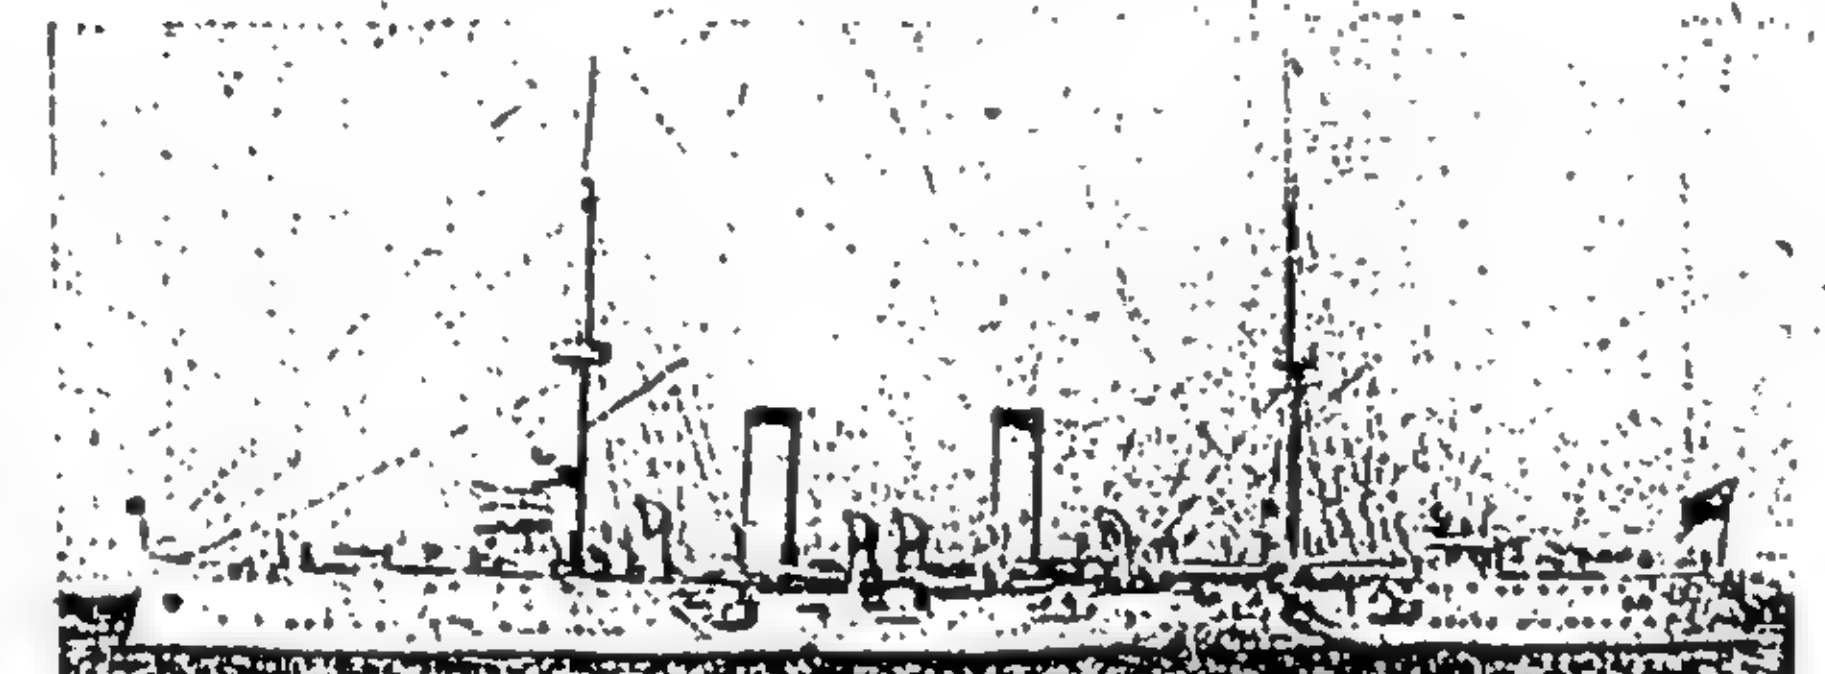

TWO MILLION MORE WOMEN

Berlin, July 5. The population of the German Reich is now estimated at 65,300,000, according to provisional returns taken from the recent census. This figure includes 830,000 inhabitants in the Saar district.

The population of the old German Empire was numbered at 67,800,000, but the latest census shows an increase of 2,700,000 as compared with the figures for 1925.

The crack light cruiser, Yat Sen, of 1650 tons, one of the vessels now lying off Castle Peak.

The Chinese warship, Hai Yung, which is similar to the Hai Chau (Chou) both of which are at anchor at Castle Peak.

THIRD PARTY INSURANCE

MAY BE COMPULSORY IN HONGKONG

GOVERNMENT'S ENQUIRIES

It is learned that the Government is considering an Ordinance providing for compulsory insurance against third party risks, to apply to every user of a motor vehicle in the Colony.

At the moment, the question at issue is the premium to be charged by the insurance companies.

The progress of the proposal is referred to in the report of the Chamber of Commerce issued today which states that the matter was brought to its attention by the receipt of a letter from the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton enclosing copy of a Draft Motor Vehicle (Third Party Risks) Ordinance, which was under consideration by Government, and stating that he had been requested by the Government to invite the assistance of the Chamber in ascertaining from British Insurance Companies in Hongkong what the premium charge would be in respect of a policy for $50,000, complying with the terms of Section 6 of the proposed Ordinance.

$50,000 STIPULATED.

"Mr. Shenton's letter stated: 'You will note from Section 4 that it is proposed that no person shall use or permit to be used a motor vehicle on a road unless there is a policy of insurance in existence in respect of third party risks which complies with the Ordinance. In ordinary cases the amount stipulated is $50,000.'

The insurance in question will be compulsory and before proceeding with the matter the Government desire to know what the public will be called upon to pay by way of premium for the purpose of complying with the terms of the Ordinance."

INSURANCE COMMITTEE.

The Chamber wrote to the Secretaries of the Fire Insurance Association, Hongkong, conveying the suggestion of the Insurance Sub-Committee of the Chamber that the Association (as a body including within its membership Insurance Companies in Hongkong) would be willing to obtain the information desired by Government.

The Fire Insurance Association appointed a Sub-Committee to go into the matter, and in reply to the Insurance Companies' request.

U.S. INDUSTRIAL CONTROL

TEXTILE CODE SIGNED

HIGHER WAGES: FEWER HOURS

Washington, July 11. American cotton textile workers are to have a maximum of a forty-four hours' week and a minimum wages of twelve dollars weekly in the southern mills and thirteen northern mills.

Child labour in the mills is to be abolished as from July 17. This is the result of the signing by President Roosevelt of the Cotton Textile Code, which is the first to be presented by an individual industry for official approval under the provisions of the Industrial Control Bill.

UNPRECEDENTED POWERS.

The Bill, it will be recalled, authorises the expenditure of American $3,300,000,000 for public works and gives the Government unprecedented powers to encourage and, if necessary, to enforce sweeping regulations regarding industrial output, wages and prices in the next two years.

The adoption of the code will have the effect of increasing wages in the textile industry by thirty per cent. and reducing hours by twenty-five per cent. —Reuter.

24 Year-Old American's Life Threatened

Albany, July 10. The Police have learned that the 24-year-old John O'Connell, a relative of the O'Connell brothers, well-known Democratic leaders, was kidnapped on July 7.

A ransom of $250,000 is demanded by the kidnappers.

RAPID PRICE INCREASE PREDICTED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphs Managers' Ordinance, 1931. Received, July 11, 11 a.m.)

London, July 10.

It is confidently expected that an agreement for the rehabilitation of silver will be formalized to-morrow.

The agreement will be between the eight leading silver Powers and it will last for a period of five years.

It is understood that it will provide for the three holding countries, China, India and Siam to limit their combined annual sales to a maximum of thirty-five or forty million ounces, while the United States, Canada and Mexico, Peru and Bolivia undertake to buy their annual surplus production and impound their treasuries.

QUICK RISE POSSIBLE.

The sponsors of the scheme believe that the announcement of the agreement will bring silver prices in America to between forty and fifty cents. It is pointed out, however, that approximately one hundred million ounces of speculative silver is now floating on the New York market and that this must be absorbed before the full beneficial effect of the agreement can be felt.

It is confidently predicted that silver will jump to sixty cents an ounce when the agreement has been fully ratified.

CONFERENCE POSITION.

Meanwhile, M. Bonnet, the French Finance Minister, tells the United States Press that he believed that the World Economic Conference would continue its sessions for twelve more days and then go into recess until September. He also believes that the dollar will be stabilized by then.

A message from Washington says that Mr. Louis Howe, the confidential secretary of President Roosevelt, has predicted that the Conference will shortly adjourn until the sub-committees are prepared to submit preliminary reports.

DOLLAR DEPRECIATION.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in the House of Commons, described the dollar's depreciation as a "very disturbing factor, but to a very large extent unnatural and artificial. It is not based upon any intrinsic economic factors, but is chiefly the result of speculation which started in Continental circles and was followed by American speculation. It is possible that we shall see a reversal of this process in the autumn. —U.P. Commercial Service. Courtesy, South China Gold Bar Company.

PORTUGAL SWOOPS

PLOTS AGAINST GOVERNMENT

Lisbon, July 10.

A series of arrests has followed the official communique announcing that measures were to be taken to dissipate the revolutionary atmosphere which the enemies of the Republic have been displaying lately.

Dr. Antonio Sergio, the former Democratic Minister and ex-Colonel Aragao, who is famous for his action in German West Africa in 1915, were among the first to be dragged into the net.

They had only recently returned to Portugal from Spain where they had been awaiting for the announcement of the amnesty for those responsible for previous revolutions against the Dictatorship. It is apparently suggested that they at once began plotting against the government upon their return to Portugal.

It is also revealed that the colonel in command of the Thirty-Fifth Infantry Regiment at Vienna was arrested on Saturday on a charge of conspiracy. —Reuter.

JAPAN'S INCREASE IN POPULATION

Exceeding a Million in 1932

Tokyo, July 11. For the first time on record, Japan's increase in population over a twelve months' period has exceeded one million.

SPECIAL GUARD ON BRITISH EMBASSY

MANY ARRESTS MADE

MINISTERS' LIVES THREATENED

Tokyo, July 11.

The official residences of all members of the Cabinet and other prominent Japanese leaders have been heavily guarded by Japanese police since last night.

Rumours are spreading like wildfire as the result of the spectacle. It is understood that the precautions taken are the result of the discovery of a "serious plot" resulting in several important arrests by the gendarmerie.

Other residences over which special police guards have been placed precautionarily include the British Embassy.

The arrests were made in Ibaragi Prefecture, where the Blood Brotherhood plot which resulted in the assassinations of Mr. Inouye, Baron Takuma Dan and last year's May 15 outrages were hatched.

SECRET CIRCULAR.

The arrests followed the discovery that circulars were being secretly distributed throughout the entire country by the Seisanto reaction group, which is affiliated to the notorious Black Dragon Society.

The circular instructed the members of the group to assemble at the Meiji Shrine, to which the twenty youths belonging to the Aikyokujo organisation connected with the May 15 outrages also resorted.

ASSASSINATIONS PLANNED.

It is reported that the Prime Minister, Admiral Baron Saito, the Minister for War, General Araki, and a number of prominent financiers were marked out for assassination.

It is believed that the special police guard at the British Embassy is due to the fact that the Seisanto, with which the Indian secessionist, Rashbi Hari Bose is closely connected, appears to be behind the present anti-British campaign in Japan. —Reuter.

MARKING OF GOODS

CUSTOMS ORDER NOW AMENDED

The British Chamber of Commerce, Shanghai, notifies that Article 1 of the Chinese Maritime Customs Regulations for the marking of goods destined for China has been altered to read as follows: —

"All imported goods, as well as their containers and packing, must be marked in a conspicuous place with the name of the country of origin (i.e., the country of production or manufacture) in Chinese characters. Such marks are to be of a durable nature. In cases, however, where marking with Chinese characters presents difficulties, the language of the country of origin may be used instead."

The Rev. Father Byrne, M.A., Mrs. P. S. Bysshe, the Rev. Mr. Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dolan, and Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Dolan, are among the names mentioned in the list of names of the members of the group.

Hair Too Oily? Try These Remedies

Your hair demands more attention in the summer than at any other time of year.

Loirena Layson

Hollywood.—There are as many styles in slacks as there are in girls who wear them, these warm days.

Loirena Layson has a lounging suit of henna flannel, slacks and double-breasted unlined jacket that have a Spanish note in the peaked front of the trousers. She wears white tuck-in shirts with them, in cotton mesh.

Constance Bennett, wears blue slacks and a white silk blouse with a very fine diagonal blue stripe. Also a blue beret.

Janet Gaynor, wore tailored pyjamas made of navy blue toweling in one-piece style, with white linen collars and cuffs.

Claire Trevor, wore a two-piece bathing suit of yellow and brown gingham, lined with yellow jersey. When they came out of the water she slipped into slacks of the gingham.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

COOL AND CHIC!

Linen Suits Will Be Summer Favourites

By Joan Savoy

Whether you work, play, ride, drive, go to races or come to town, you are going to have to get into linen this summer, if you want to be smart.

Black linen ensembles are favoured. But when those first scorching days come, it's the white linen things that will touch your grateful heart. There's something so everlastingly fresh and cool looking about white linen.

This season the non-crushable quality takes the last hurdle out of the linen race. Got it so that it doesn't need pressing eternally and there's nothing like it.

One of the smarter of the white linen suits has the new swagger coat, classically simple, with a built-up skirt that flares just enough. There is a handsome trifle of a linen blouse, in Neapolitan stripes, with the new bag neckline and a tie, of course. Top it with a little linen hat.

long before fall comes again. But too much oil is as bad as too little.

There are various shampoos, tonics and lotions which correct oily conditions. So does a good old-fashioned massage night and morning with the finger tips. Avoid too frequent shampooing if your hair has a tendency toward oiliness. Every ten days should be often enough to wash it. If it gets unbearably oily between washings try one of the dry shampoos.

Rubbing your hair vigorously with a rough bath towel each night after you have massaged the scalp will go far toward removing excess oil. This is a treatment which requires morning-after-morning work. You can't do it just once or twice and hope to get good results.

Oily hair takes a permanent beautifully but when it comes to

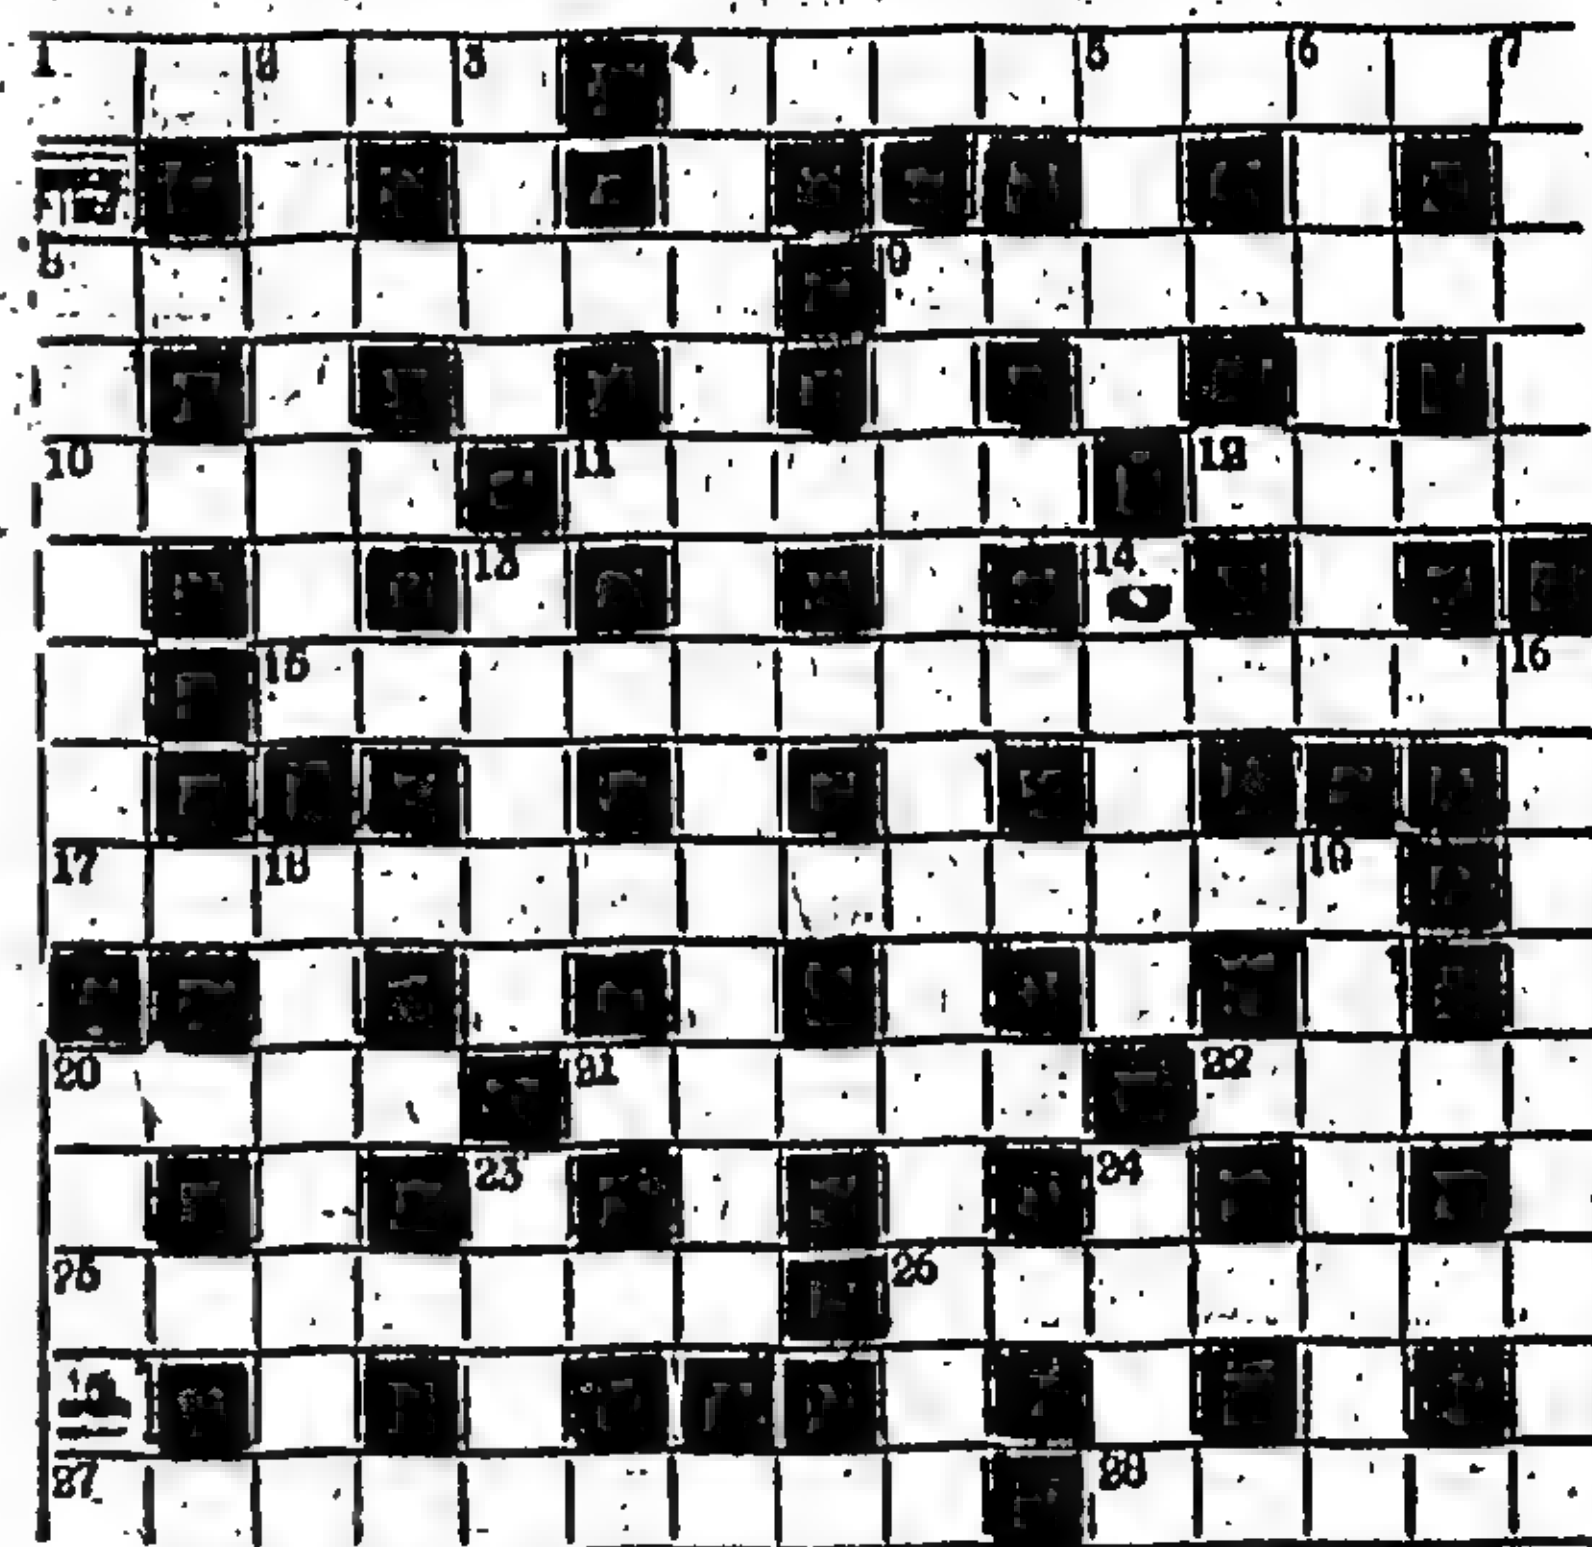

retaining the wave and staying set the reverse is true. So why not begin at once to get rid of the oil?

If you haven't already learned to massage your scalp properly here's the right way. Place your elbows on a table with your head in your hands. Now move your scalp and not your fingers. Keep it up for ten minutes each night and see the improvement in a few weeks.

For the Late-Comers

Boiled meats are your best bet on the nights when you simply don't expect all of your family to arrive on time for dinner. The meat can be put into the boiler after the tardy ones arrive and be freshly cooked when they are ready to eat it.

CHAPTER XXIX

Monnie turned the letter over in her hands before she opened it. The thick creamy envelope, the bold black writing spoke to her eloquently of the writer. She smiled to herself, secretly, exultantly. Dan would explain now his long silence. She would know and be reassured.

She went into the house, hallooing to her mother who was in the dining room. Then she sped upstairs, eager to peruse the letter in solitude. Her heart was beating faster. It was almost as if Dan himself were in the room, waiting to speak to her—

"Dear Monnie," (he began) "I've been busy every minute of the time. This is a great country and great people and I like it. Rode 50 miles yesterday. We had a picnic up in the hills. To-night we go to one of the dances at the next ranch. Everybody's so hospitable. Monnie, there's something I want to talk to you about when I get back. I think perhaps after all we'd better hold up our plans a bit—not go ahead with the January idea. There are reasons. I'll tell you more when I see you. Let me assure you that you are greatly missed.—Dan."

She put the letter down on the dressing table gently. She looked at herself in the mirror, taking off her hat, brushing her crest of bright hair away from the sweep of her forehead.

"Why, then," she said to herself lightly, in a conversational voice. "There's no point—"

She broke off at the sound of Kay's footstep on the stairs. Quickly she hid the letter in the top drawer.

Kay came in whistling softly. "Hello, didn't know you were here."

"I got off early," Kay said. "What's up?" The younger sister started, noting Monnie's brilliant eyes, the flush on her usually pale cheeks.

"I've decided."

"Decided what? Oh, do you mean—?"

Monnie nodded. "I'm going with Miss Anstice."

Not to think, Monnie told herself, was the idea. Not over to be still to allow the biting, stinging memories to intrude. She laughed, she was gay, brittle. Two weeks—in two weeks more she and Miss Anstice would be on their way. It was not soon enough—not nearly.

After a feverish night Monnie had written Dan a letter—a furious, impotent letter which she had later torn up. It was ridiculous to behave in this way. What did it matter? What did anything matter? She told herself she had known from the start that things would fall out this way. She was not surprised. Events had marched their inevitable climax. Sandra had got her man—there was no other explanation.

If she stopped long enough to consider the situation she was overwhelmed with a sort of sick despair. She would not dwell on what might happen if any of the family fell ill while she was away.

Kay's salary would help to carry them along. Bill, unusually garrulous for him, had called her aside. "I'm glad you're going," he said. "Somebody in this family was about due for a break. Don't worry about money."

"What about Angie?" Monnie had asked.

"Is that—?" Bill's face was blank. "We're coming right along," he told her easily. "Maybe in the spring she'll be free."

"You—you're crazy about her, aren't you?"

Bill looked faintly embarrassed. "Sure. Angie's a wonderful girl." But Monnie thought she caught, in his eyes, almost a touch of bewilderment. If Bill had given his promise to Angie, she reflected, wild horses wouldn't drag it away again. She thought of the lines: "The moon of my own stock, Bitter bad they may be, But at least they feel the things I feel."

"They see the things I see."

She felt a surge of pride in her brother. Angie Gillen was a lucky girl.

Mrs. O'Dare said one night, "Monnie, I've a little money saved that I want you to have. I know Miss Anstice is going to pay you a small salary as a companion but you'll need a few nice things. This is a neat egg. You're to take it, and buy some pretty new clothes."

She put a small roll of bills into the girl's hand. Monnie, counting them, found $100.

"Is this the money Aunt Sybil left you?"

"Yes. I want you to have it."

"I can't. You need things more than I do—a winter coat—"

"Monnie!" There was a new note in her mother's quiet voice.

"You're to have it. Do you hear? I want you to!"

Three days more. Then two.

At length the last night came. In spite of herself, in spite of all her frantic resolutions, the girl found she had been waiting unconsciously for some word from Dan.

Perhaps he would hear she was going away. He might see the "Belvedere News" with the account of her plans. Surely someone would tell him, mention it casually in a letter. They would say, "I see Monica O'Dare is going abroad with Miss Cory."

Dan would be affronted by the idea. He would send her a wire.

But this was her last night. She had not answered his letter, nor had she heard from him.

"Got everything?" This from Kay, packing and sorting the underthings. Wasn't it sweet of Gertrude to bring those suede gloves?

"Yes," Mrs. O'Dare sighed. "Gertrude's an awfully nice girl. I'm so fond of her."

"Mother, you can't choose Bill's wife for him. Don't you know that?" Kay said, smiling.

"Of course she does. Hasn't she proved it?" Monnie gave Kay a warning glance. "It is too bad about Gertrude and Bill. He used to like her a lot and I know she still cares about him."

"So does Angie," said Kay, bent on mischief.

"We know that." Her mother looked up from mending a slip of Monnie's. "Angie's a good little thing," said Mrs. O'Dare loyally. "Only—well it can't be helped now!"

"It's the ones with the dash that succeed," Kay murmured. "If Gertrude would give that mousy hair of hers a henna rinse and redden her fingernails—if she'd use eye shadow and lipstick she'd look a lot better. She's not bad looking only she gets herself up to look like Jane Austen."

"You tell her that some time, Miss Smarty," said Mark, who had come in noiselessly and stood grinning in the doorway.

"You belong in bed, young man," Kay told her brother loftily. "Believe I will tell her, now that you mention it."

"Children, children!"

"Aw, we weren't fighting. Mums, only Kay thinks she knows it all."

Mark put his freckled paw beside his mother's thin one.

"We'd better all get to bed," she told her brood. "We've got to get up early. Monnie's train leaves at 8:30."

There was a sharp rattle at the door and Mark blundered to open it. He returned in a moment bearing a square white florist's box. Monnie's heart gave a great leap.

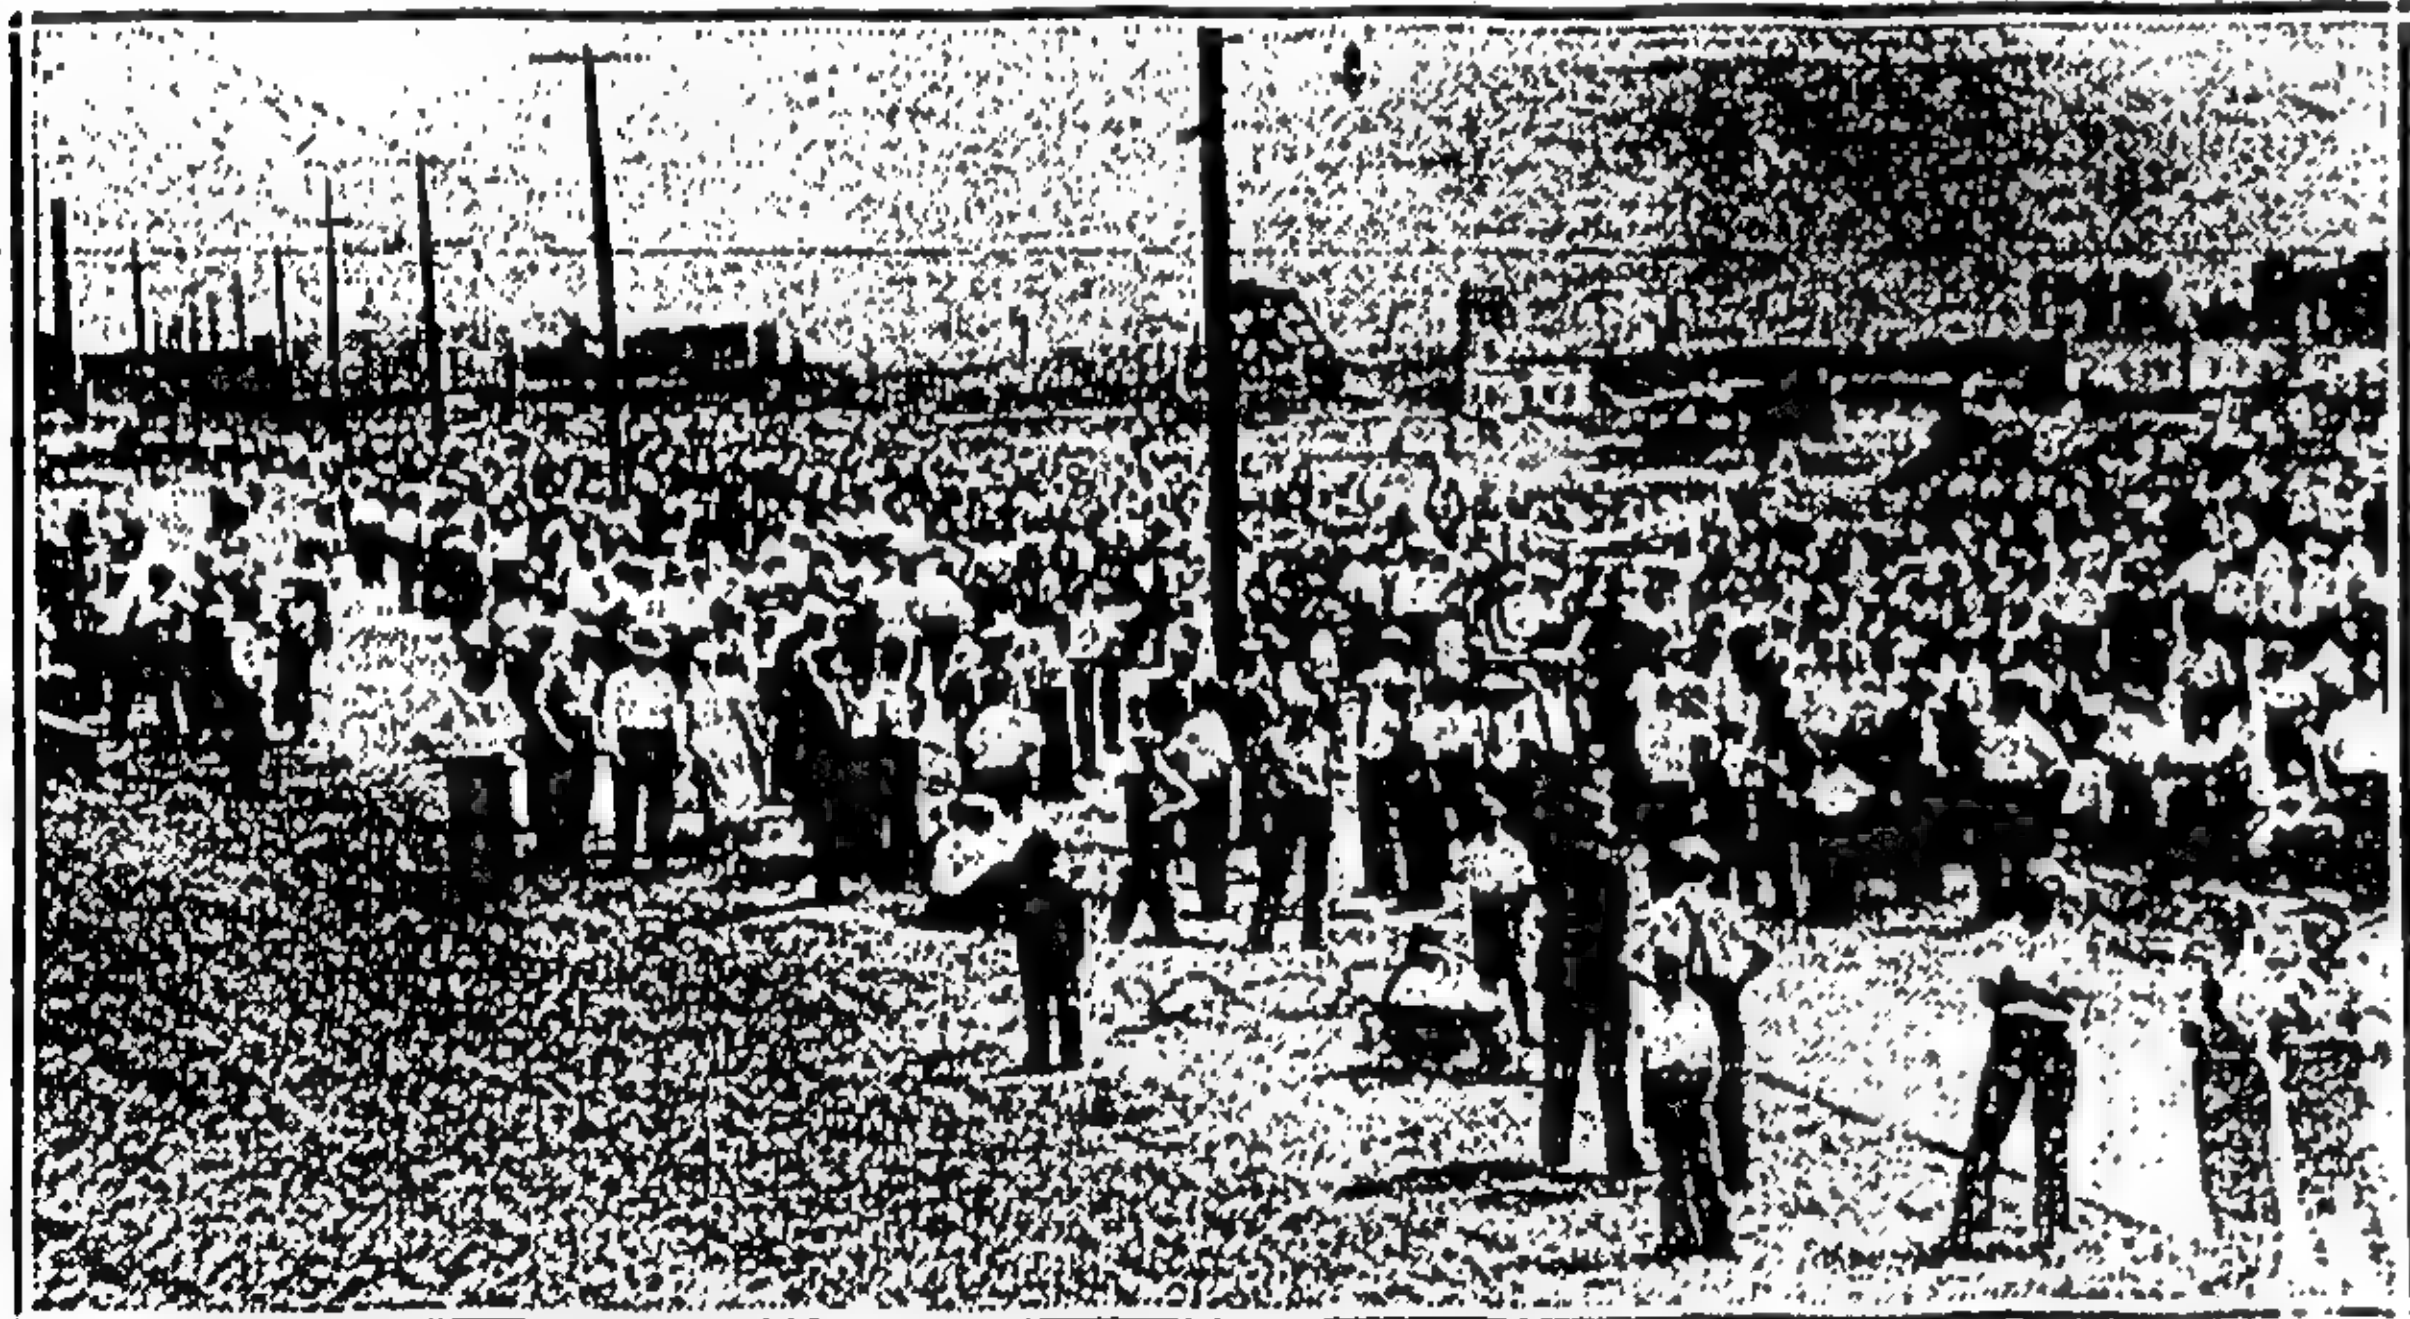

Her thought, as always, was that it might be from Dan—Dan who was in far away Wyoming.

"Kid Eustace's chauffeur," grinned Mark, "brought it."

They were armed with riot guns, sub-machine guns, and gas bombs. There was no violence.

VANITY CAUSES SUICIDES

UNUSUAL THEORY BY DOCTOR

Cincinnati, Ohio.
A study of suicides in the United States as disclosed in insurance company statistics has led Dr. Muhlborg, medical director for an insurance company to conclude that masculine vanity has been at the bottom of a larger percentage of these tragedies in the last three years of the depression.

He adds that this conclusion does not apply to women.

Insurance records indicate, he claims that most of the Americans who took their lives in the last three years were men; that most of them were leaders in their communities, and that although they apparently killed themselves because of loss of money, "the majority left estates which, though greatly reduced, average considerably higher than what most people spend lives struggling to acquire."

"The thing that drives men to take their own lives, it seems,"
he said, "is their inability to swallow the pride they have enjoyed building during their prosperous years. It is not the haunting fear of seeing his children go hungry, or his wife weaken under the monotony of housework, so much as it is the agony of visualizing his neighbour's glee when his twelve-cylinder super-sedan is sold and the family withdraws from the country club."

Such motives do not apply to women, he believes. "They have many outlets for their vanity, such as dress, manners, children and home, while man's vanity feeds largely upon his prowess as a material provider."—Reuter.

DARLING FOOL

Monnie, hiding her disappointment, cut the green tape and lifted from the crinkling paper a cluster of bronze and green orchids, delicate, exotic. Charles had scrawled on the card, "To wear on your going-away day. Good luck."

"They're much too grand for Belvedere," sighed Kay, enviously.
"Keep 'em fresh till you get to New York. Charles must have wired to get them."

"They'll be lovely with your new coat," the mother cried, touching the frail blooms with a reverent finger.

Monnie did not sleep much that night. When, toward dawn, she fell at last into a fitful slumber she was haunted by dreams in which Dan Cardigan, dressed in chaps and sheepskin, rode toward her, bearing a sheaf of giant orchids.

She felt someone tugging at the bed clothes and opened her eyes.
"Wake up, lazybones," Kay was smiling.

Monnie came back to life. It was the day she was to leave for New York with Miss Anstice. Tomorrow they would be sailing for England. She had to pinch herself to see if she were really alive.

An hour later, flushed, starry-eyed, the orchids planned to the brown fur collar of her new hunter's green coat, she faced them all on the platform.

"Oh, I can't leave you—" Her mother patted her shoulder. "Nonsense. We'll get along all right."

"All aboard!" The bell began to toll. Miss Anstice, nervously excited, hopped up on the platform.
She saw their faces through a blur.

"Good-by, good-by!" The train was moving.

"That," said Miss Anstice a moment later, "is the down train from the city. Wonder who's on it.
Her curiosity excited, she peered out.

"Quite a crowd," murmured Miss Anstice. Monnie did not hear.
Nor did she know that the tall young man shouldering his way along the platform they had just left was Dan Cardigan.

COMEDY OF A CHEQUE

LOSS GIVES MAN FINE FEAST

"I'LL COME BACK FOR THE CHANGE"

Johannesburg.
How the carelessness of a mining director in mislaying a £10,000 cheque gave an office thief an opportunity of enjoying a sumptuous meal has been revealed. A Johannesburg mining company wanted a cheque for £10,000 in a hurry and asked one of the directors to see about it.
The director had the cheque made out and sent it to another director for signature. The second director signed the cheque, left it on his desk and an office thief lifted it and put it in his pocket.

Three-quarters of an hour later the mine messenger called for the cheque and no cheque could be found. Eventually the bank was notified to stop payment, another cheque was made out and the messenger departed.

Two hours later there was a telephone call for one of the directors and an excited voice at the other end exclaimed, "Just now a man came in, he eat the biggest meal I can make ready in 10 minutes, he eat the fruit, he eat the nuts and then he come to me and he give me a cheque for £10,000 and he say, 'I come back for the change.' How can I change it? And now, what about my five shillings for my lunch, please?"

He got his five shillings, the thief got his meal and the company got the cheque.—Reuter.

PLANNED ECONOMY AND PLANNED PRICE LEVELS

creases of buying power through

A PLANNED ECONOMY.

One of the most dangerous of the proposals of the new economics is that of a so-called planned economy.
Economic life as we have known it has been, in large measure, an unconscious thing; in the sense that no mind or no group of minds has seen the whole picture, and certainly no mind or group of minds has directed the whole picture. Intelligence runs through it, but it is the intelligence of individuals or organizations seeking their own particular wages or their own particular profits, seeing their own sources of supply, seeing their own markets, but not seeing with any great clearness the movements of the system as a whole.

FATAL BALCONY COLLAPSE

FOREMEN IN THE WITNESS BOX

A foreman in charge of the cement concrete work and a foreman employed by the owner, Mr. Kwok Wai-cam gave evidence at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon when the inquest into the deaths of Cheng Tai, an amah and Jessie Hanson (11), who were killed in a balcony collapse Happy Valley on June 3, was continued.

It was stated that the men who poured the cement were not at the moment available to give evidence. Those men worked in gangs and were sometimes in Macao, sometimes in Canton and occasionally in Hongkong.

Mr. Schofield is sitting as Coroner, and the special jury empanelled comprises Messrs. R. A. Rodgers (foreman), Colbourne Little, and Li Koon-chun.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K. C. (instructed by Mr. F. E. Nash, of Messrs. Woo and Nash, appeared for the contractors, Messrs. Wang Tak and Co., Mr. H. J. Armstrong, of Messrs. Deacons, for the architect, Mr. A. J. Lane, and Mr. M. K. Lo, of Messrs. Lo and Lo, for the owner of the house.

The cross-examination of the architect, Mr. Tong Kwong-hing, was continued by Mr. M. K. Lo.

Mr. Lo: Do you agree with me that the contractor, before he laid down the concrete next day, would and should have seen that the wooden chocks had been removed?—If he had found that the wooden chocks had been removed, he should have replaced them.

And the fact that the wooden chocks had been removed should have been found out by him?—It is possible he may not have found that out.

Do you suggest that this foreman should have seen that the steel had dropped from the right to the wrong position?—The contractor's foreman could not always be at one spot. He had to oversee the work being done in the flat too.

Concrete Pouring.

Mr. Schofield: You mean, then, that he could not always have seen the concrete being poured in?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Lo: According to the foreman, the cement concrete was put in floor by floor, including the balconies?

Witness: Yes.

I understand from the foreman that the cement mixing board would be placed anywhere within the floor?—Yes.

And the cement concrete is poured from the floor to the balcony?—Yes. The cement would then gradually spread out, and the men had also gradually to move out to the verandah.

It was practically not necessary for any foreman to be on the rods while the cement was being poured in?—He must necessarily tread on the rods. Sometimes the workmen had occasion to tread on the balcony to call someone or to lower baskets, even when the concrete is not being laid.

I put it to you that no wooden chocks were used at all in any of the balconies, and the foreman will tell the Court that all he saw was cement concrete blocks about three or four inches long and half an inch thick being used on all floors, and the same blocks were used when the steel was laid?—No, that is not right.

I understood you to say at the last hearing that according to the plan, there were to be no cross bars to hang the stirrups?—There should be two hanging bars.

Is it a fact that the balcony steel should be put on top of the two bars?—Yes.

Model Put In.

Then can you explain how the whole thing sank down?—If a man stands within an area of two feet by one from the edge of the bars, that part would slope under the weight. The weight might also bear down the whole hanging bar.

Mr. Jenkin, at this stage, put before witness another model, which, he said, really represented the true position.

Cross-examining on this model, Mr. Lo asked whether, when it was opened up, he would find this part to be bent down?

Witness: Yes the whole length of it would be bent down.

The foreman will tell the Court that you examined the steel bars on top of the garage on the first floor, but you did not examine other bars, but left that work to Chan Yin?—No, I examined all the bars.

On the balcony, as you have designed it, the railings should also be carried?—Yes.

I put it to you, that this balcony as designed was just sufficient to carry the balcony plus the railings only on the assumption that the steel bars were on top of the concrete?—The bar is 4½ inches from the balcony.

Do you agree with me that every half inch put, means more stress on the balcony?—Yes.

Lei-Chuen, a cement concrete foreman, said that he was at work at No. 16, Yuk Pau Street in 1931.

ANOTHER GAOL OVERCROWDED

WHEN 200 NATIVES ARE SENTENCED

Umziato, Zululand.

As a sequel to a tribal fight in the Umziwami Valley 298 natives were charged before the local magistrate and all except 28 were convicted. Varying fines were imposed, ranging from £2. 10s. to £17. 10s. with the alternative of from two months to six months hard labour. Only a few could pay their fines. The local gaols were thus suddenly over-crowded and most of the prisoners will have to be transferred elsewhere.—Reuter.

He had been engaged by a sub-contractor, and he was in charge of the work of laying the cement concrete on all floors and balconies. The rods were supported on wooden chocks. He did not know the height at which they were supported, but the wooden chocks were three and sometimes four inches long. The rods were never supported on broken stones.

The Owner's Foreman.

He did not pay attention to the position of the bars when the cement was poured in, and he did not notice if any of the bars were bent. The owner's four foremen were present, and if they found any of the bars protruding out of the concrete they would pick up bamboo poles and ram it down and they would then instruct the workmen to put more concrete over it. When they found iron rods in positions which they considered were wrong, they would put them right and then give instructions for the cement to be poured in. He could not remember what they actually did on the balcony rods, and he could not remember who carried out the cement pouring.

Interposing, Detective-Sergeant Fitches, who had charge of the investigations, mentioned that he had questioned the witness at length regarding the last point, but he could obtain no definite information. The cement pourers were in gangs and they would be in Hongkong, then in Canton and then in Macao.

Replying further, the witness said there were three boards for mixing cement on each floor.

Cross-examined by Mr. Jenkin, witness said the concrete was first filled in from the verandah. Cement was poured from three or four different points at the same time.

Counsel: Is the cement made outside and brought up or is it mixed on the floor?

Witness: The mixing of concrete is done on the floor.

Mr. Armstrong:—Do you know who the owner is?

Witness: Yes.

Replying to further questions, witness said the owner was present nearly every day, and was interested in the building. He spoke to witness about any part of the work that he found unsatisfactory. The owner would order him to fill the measure of cement. It was the duty of the owner and his foreman to see that the cement was worked in properly under the bars.

Were you ever told to ram down the cement?—No.

Asked what was the result of the ramming, witness replied he did not know.

Replying to Mr. Lo, witness said he did not understand the difference between making a cement concrete floor and a cement concrete cantilever balcony.

The contractors did not explain to him how high the bars should be.

Mr. Lo—When ramming was done did you think they were doing right or wrong? Witness: I did not think they were doing it right.

Did you think it was a danger to the building?—If the rods were rammed down from the position which they were in, it would endanger the building.

Were the steel bars rammed down in the balcony?—They must have been, because the rods showed above the concrete and the foreman then rammed the bent-up rods down, before further cement was poured in.

I put it to you that the owner's workmen did not do any work but merely carried out inspection?—They will certainly deny it, if I say they worked.

If you thought the ramming was wrong, did you report to the contractor?—No, my duty is only confined to the pouring in of cement.

Li Cheuk, the owner's foreman, was the next witness called. He stated he was a bricklayer in the country. The last witness was his helper. On one occasion witness had to report to the owner about the presence of earth in the sand that was being used for the cement. He also reported on several occasions to the owner regarding the interior decorations.

Witness did not remember anything about the arrangement of the iron work. Nothing happened while cement was being poured in on the balcony. He was paid for his trouble, as was last witness.

The hearing was adjourned to this afternoon.

PLANT.

THE "SANITAPE" METHOD EXPLAINED.

The plant consists of the most up-to-date and efficient mechanical apparatus, including a number of "SANITAPE" machines, which seal the tablets hygienically in specially prepared wax paper compartments.

This system is known as the modern HYGIENIC "SANITAPE" method of packing, and because of its thoroughly protective properties, ensures that "ASPRO" retains its original high standard of purity. This should serve to commend "ASPRO" to all who appreciate the absolute necessity of purity in medicine.

The wonderful human-like "SANITAPE" machines are one of the most ingenious and highly-developed engineering triumphs of modern times. The machines wrap the tablets with unerring regularity in waxed paper, divide the paper into separate compartments, crimp each compartment so that no air can find access to the tablet, fold the tape, and finally pass them through a spray of paraffin wax, effectively sealing the "SANITAPE", and rendering the tablets proof against damp, moisture and any form of contamination.

ELIMINATION OF HANDLING

The "SANITAPE" method of packing has a distinct advantage over the crude and obsolete system of hand packing. At no time during the process of manufacturing, compressing and packing, do "ASPRO" tablets come in contact with the human hand, therefore, contamination from this source is entirely prevented, the tablets reaching the consumer in the same perfect hygienic state as when they left the tableting machines.

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. "ASPRO" has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

HYGIENIC method of Packing ASPRO EXPLAINED

PROCESS.

The production of Acetyl-Salicylic Acid in its really pure form is a difficult and expensive process, requiring the services of highly skilled chemists. The cruder forms of this product contain free Salicylic Acid, which is expressly forbidden in the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. The unskilled tablet maker may start with a pure drug, but by lack of the latest knowledge may turn out tablets containing free Salicylic Acid, liberated during the processes necessary to prepare the powder for compression. We make the following positive claim for "ASPRO" tablets. THEY ARE MADE FROM BRITISH MANUFACTURED ACETYL-SALICYLIC ACID, FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID AND CONFORMING TO THE TESTS OF ALL KNOWN AUTHORITIES. THE TABLETS ARE MADE BY PROCESSES WHICH ENSURE THAT THEY ARE OF THE SAME STANDARD OF PURITY AS THE ORIGINAL DRUG, AND CONTAIN NO TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID. NO CHALK, TALC OR OTHER MINERAL IS USED AS AN EXCIPIENT, WHICH IN "ASPRO" TABLETS IS A HIGHLY REFINED FOOD PRODUCT.

HOW TO TAKE ASPRO FOR COLDS & FLU

"ASPRO" makes positive, definite, clear claims that it will relieve Influenza or Cold attack in one night and it proves it. You can prove it! By taking 2 "ASPRO" Tablets at the first sign of a Cold, and 2 tablets every three hours afterwards until the symptoms disappear; a hot lemon or whisky drink to be taken with the last dose before going to bed. It is advisable when taking "ASPRO" for Influenza and Colds to keep the body warmly clad in order to prevent chill. The value of "ASPRO" for Influenza was proved in Australia where the Pneumonic Influenza Plague ravaged the country, and the Federal Parliament proclaimed "ASPRO" Necessary Commodity in the public interest.

A WONDERFUL DIAMOND

"GREAT NASSAK"

ON VIEW AT WORLD FAIR

Chicago, Illinois.

The great Nassak Diamond—first seen by white man as the gleaming eye of an Indian God—is dazzling the eyes of visitors at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair.

It is announced by Fair officials that the Half million dollar gem, looted from the temple of Siva at Nassak, India, in the 18th century and later taken to London, is the chief exhibit in the Jewellery display.

The 78 5/8 carat stone is guarded elaborately. It rests in a cabinet of burglarproof glass inside of which is a drill-proof safe. The top of the safe folds back and allows the cushion on which the diamond will rest to arise on display above the safe.

Armed guards in gas masks stand nearby. The safe also has the protection of tear gas and the "electro eye"—the photo electric bell which sounds the alarm when anyone crosses its invisible beam. The glass case is so arranged that any blow to it automatically causes the gem to sink into the safe and a flood of tear gas is let loose.

The Jewellery pavilion also includes exhibitions showing a diamond mine in operation, a native kaffir kraal where workers live, and diamond cutters at work.

Fifteen tons of "blue ground" containing an estimated 3,000 carats in diamonds were shipped to Chicago from Kimberley, South Africa, to provide a realistic setting for the diamond mines.—Reuter.

TOO CAREFUL WITH HIS MONEY

AND SO HE LOST IT

Prague.

A wealthy Czechoslovak manufacturer has lost £75,000—because he was careful with his money, according to a press report.

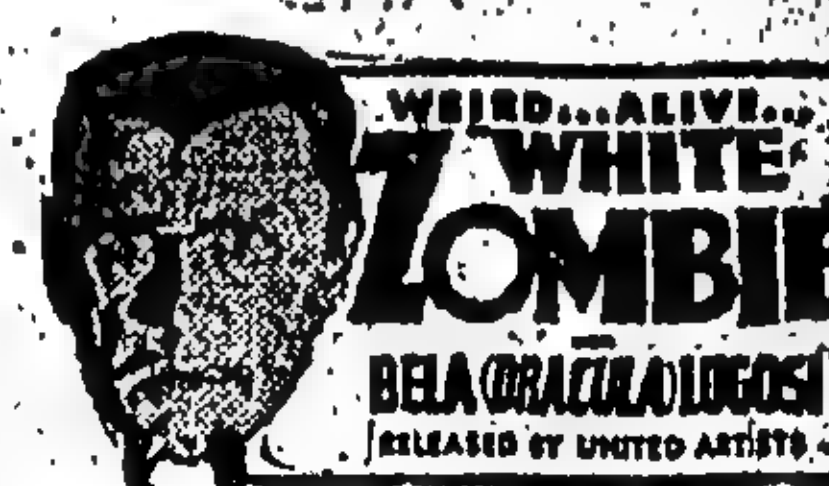

The manufacturer's chauffeur asked for a "rise." It was refused.

Shortly afterwards the chauffeur told customs officials that while crossing the frontier into Germany that he had seen his master changing tyres and putting a packet into the spare tyre.

The spare-tyre was examined, the money was found inside and seized, and the manufacturer was arrested.

"RACKETEERING" IN HONGKONG?

The startling drop in the sales of Government Monopoly opium is gathering pace rather than improving, despite the intensive campaign directed towards the suppression of the divan. The latest figures, which we believe to be reliable, show that the revenue from this source has dropped to below $2,000 daily, less than a sixth of the gross income from sales prior to the adoption of the new policy. The significance of this cannot be lost. If the decrease in sales represented a decrease in consumption, the Colony could bear it with an approving smile, but it simply means that smokers are leaving one kind of opium which they do not want because it is dearer than and inferior to another. It also means that they are able to get the cheaper and better brand. Since we last examined the situation which has arisen from the closing of the Hongkong factory, it has developed features which are sufficient to cause grave concern. The smuggling organisation is perfecting its system and a problem is being created for the Colony very closely approaching that of the United States under Prohibition. In a milder fashion, it has always existed. To-day, with only unwanted opium legally obtainable, it has been intensified tenfold. In its different way, the situation bears an astonishing resemblance to the American scene under the operation of the Volstead Act. The moonshine stills are represented by illicit opium boiling "factories." Smoking dens are as numerous as speak-easies. The only thing missing is "racketeering" and it is not at all certain that the Colony will not experience the "racket" accompaniment to the game of defeating the Revenue Officer. With a craving greater and more dangerous than alcoholic liquor to cater for, the emergence of rival gangs seems a logical outcome. We are not creating a bogey. Stories of "protection" in certain areas have already reached us. The ease with which illicit opium is obtainable in clubs and boarding-houses is astonishing. It also suggests a line of investigation which might be pursued with advantage by the authorities if they are to tackle the problem seriously.

NOTES OF THE DAY

World Economic Conference prospects look a trifle brighter this morning. No decision was reached upon the all-important issue of the scope of the monetary discussions, but the gold countries agreed to examine the problem generally with a view to the drafting of an agenda. This represents a distinct advance. The gold countries are, at least, prepared to listen to the arguments of the other side. This is the mood in which mutual concessions are most likely to be obtained. The problems were debated in the House of Commons but they provided only one interesting feature, a hint from Mr. Neville Chamberlain that the British Government would be prepared to consider a return to the gold standard or an international monetary standard.

THE CABARET PROBLEM

Much has been heard about cabarets lately, chiefly complaints of residents who nightly suffer from the symphonic (!) blarings of the bands. On the other hand, there has been a complete, almost painful, silence on the part of Government concerning the proposed Cabaret Regulations. Two months ago we were promised them "in a fortnight." The promise is still a "debt unpaid" on the legislative account of the Hon. Mr. G. C. Alabaster. In the meantime, a Kowloon resident has appealed to the Court for assistance, and has been politely, but not at all convincingly, told that pending the proposed "regulations," nothing can be done to alleviate the position. There has been ample time for action. Residents have a right to some sort of protection, whilst the cabarets are at present in an invidious position. For their own sakes they would prefer to know exactly what is to be their status, what privileges (if any) they are to enjoy, and to what extent they are to be subject to control.

JAPANESE DUMPING

The chorus of complaint against the dumping of Japanese goods is swelling. New Zealand, Germany and Australia have added their protests in the last three days, although what satisfaction they are likely to obtain, it is difficult to imagine. Japan is the one country which has maintained a reasonably high level of prosperity during the world-wide depression. Her exports have increased since 1929 when those of all other countries have diminished on a rapidly growing scale. To invite her to stop selling, is to invite her to surrender her business activity. The complaints of unfair competition may be fully justified. Her answer is that despite the allegation that she is selling below cost of production, her national wealth is increasing rapidly. Japan seems to have discovered the secret that while the value of newly produced goods exceeds that of goods and commodities consumed, there is little to worry about nationally.

TOMATOES AND PATRIOTISM

One of the queerest cases the indefatigable American Civil Liberties Union has yet tackled would seem to be that of the labour agitator who has been accused of defiling the American flag. He was addressing a meeting, suitably flagged and decorated, when a group of ex-service men showered the speaker with ancient eggs, decayed tomatoes and such like. The charge against him says he used an American flag to wipe from his face stray bits of squashed tomatoes and trickling eggs which took lodgement there. His defenders retort that he wiped his face with a handkerchief, and that the flag was defiled by the flying missiles themselves. But even if the charge was true, it is difficult to get indignant about it. A man who gets an uncooked tomato omelet in the face is likely to wipe it off in a hurry, and to use the first thing that he can lay his hands on.

TICKET TO MONECOPOLIS

No better example of the way human thought runs to extremes can be seen perhaps than in the recent ideas which have been advanced about the city of the future. Mr. Frank Lloyd Wright, the architect, has gone to one extreme with his vision of the broad-acre city, where every family would have its acre of ground and everybody would be back to nature again. And now the prediction is made that the city of the future will be "a monecopolis, a single, vast, unburnable, high building, whose corridors are streets, and whose light, ultraviolet, and ventilation are entirely artificial." This monster called monecopolis, it seems, is the inevitable outcome of progress, the progress which is making possible the conditioning of air, the building of windowless factories, and other modern developments. But who that looks forward to the morning stroll from home to office would give this up for the artificial comforts and conveniences of the monecopolis?

PLANNED ECONOMY AND PLANNED PRICE LEVELS

Banking Privilege is To-day the Subject of Attack from All Quarters in Discussions on the World's Economic Problems. Below is the first instalment of the other side of the question, as outlined by Mr. Benjamin M. Anderson, the Economist of the Chase National Bank. He subjects President Roosevelt's programme to critical examination.

NO. 1

We must be clear as to our objectives. To my mind, the great and vital problem confronting the United States and the world to-day is that of getting many millions of men back to work, getting business going again, getting goods moving throughout the country and throughout the world, increasing enormously the volume of production in the world, so that the volume of consumption may also be greatly increased. But among the proposals which purport to have this economic revival for an objective, there are not a few which really look toward different ends. There are, as usual, social revolutionaries who like to fish in troubled waters, who would seek radically to recast the whole economic system, to shatter the sorry scheme of things and "then re-mould it nearer to the heart's desire."

Whatever else measures of this sort might accomplish, they would not, in the near future, restore production and consumption in the world, or get men to work. And there are many more moderate proposals which, while they might or might not be meritorious in themselves, if adopted in a tranquil time, when the general economic machinery is functioning well, would, none the less, interfere with economic revival if adopted to-day. There are schemes for the redistribution of wealth, which schemes may or may not have merit, considered as long run measures, but they certainly are not revival measures. There are other proposals, growing out of the righteous anger of honest men who have discovered iniquity, which are punitive in their nature, and which can easily go so far as to impair the efficiency of existing economic machinery which is necessary to facilitate revival. We must be clear as to our objectives. If, as an incident to revival measures, or if, as contributing to revival measures, we can end old abuses and can improve the general economic system, so much the better. But we must not permit the present unhappy state of the world and the present flux of bewildered political opinion to be capitalized by those who advocate new and untested economic theories in the making of hazardous experiments. This sick economic world of ours is a patient in a hospital, not a subject for experimentation in a laboratory. And if, as I believe is the case, we can cure this patient by tried and tested measures, surely we have no right to discard those tried and tested measures and to turn the patient over to a new school of physicians who have some theories that have never been known to work.

In medicine, when radical new measures are proposed, it is at least the common practice to try them out on animals first, and then, after long and careful experimentation, to try them out tentatively on human beings. We must certainly ask the new schools of economic practitioners to try things out on a small scale first, tentatively and cautiously, before they ask us to transform the whole economic system radically.

OLD AND NEW ECONOMICS.

We have heard a great deal about the failure of the so-called old economics, and the need for new doctrines. I think it can safely be said that there has been no failure of the old economics in this post war period, because so little of what the old economics advocates has been done. The old economics taught, and teaches, that tariffs should not be unduly high, and that goods should move with reasonable freedom across national borders. The post war period has seen a steadily mounting body of tariffs and other trade barriers, choking the flow of goods across national borders.

The old economics taught that excessive credit and artificially cheap money would generate great speculation and the piling up of unsound debts which could not be paid and which, in their qualitative, deterioration and collapse, would create crisis and panic. But we spent the post war years, especially from 1922 into 1928, in an altogether unprecedented expansion of credit at artificially low interest rates, with discount rates held below the market instead of above the market as the old rules prescribed, and we generated a credit bubble and a speculative bubble, the collapse of which has brought us untold disaster.

John Stuart Mill knew the dangers both of excessive tariffs and of excessive credit. No new economics was needed to avert them.

The old economics taught that international debts must be paid primarily with goods and services. It taught that the debtor country, in the period when it was borrowing, would have an import surplus, but that when it began to repay, it must have an export surplus, sending out more goods than it consumed, and it taught that a creditor country, when the time came to receive payments, must receive an import surplus, a so-called adverse balance of trade. But the old economics also knew, what the new economics seems unwilling to admit, namely, that it was good for a creditor country to receive an excess of imports, that the term "adverse balance of trade" under these circumstances was a meaningless and misleading phrase. The old economics taught when goods came into a country in payment of debts they do not reduce the ability of the country to buy the products of its own labour, but, rather, increase its total income and its total consumption. The foreign goods coming in in payment of debts are sold in the creditor country, and the proceeds in money are not taken out but, rather, are turned over as income to be repaid within the creditor country, increasing their incomes by the same amount in money as the goods which come in in payment of the debts, and leaving them with undiminished buying power for their domestic products. But the new economics seems to be returning to seventeenth and eighteenth century policies with respect to these matters, seems to be afraid of goods, afraid of production, afraid of income, and afraid of an abundance of goods for consumption.

AGE-OLD FALLACIES.

The old economics knew very well that it was absurd to try to expect any definite equivalents in imports and exports as between two particular countries. It understood triangular and quadrangular trade. It knew that if a country's general balance of trade with the whole world was in proper adjustment to its creditor or debtor position things were going right, and that nothing need be done about it. The new economics seems to be veering strongly toward the notion that the volume of exports and imports with every particular country must be regulated, and that trade must be discouraged with every country which does not buy more from us than it sells to us. It is not pleasant to see this recrudescence of sixteenth and seventeenth century fallacies!

The old economics taught that there is no such thing as a general overproduction. It taught that the power to consume grows out of the power to produce, that consumption grows out of production.

The Very Idea!

CHILDHOOD DAYS

By Eddie "Glaxo" Kelly.

A few years ago, a gentleman named Mr. Ring Lardner pinched an idea we had been cultivating from childhood and produced a book called "The Autobiography of a Wonder Man." He did it without offering the slightest excuse, and made a lot of money out of it.

Moreover, he was never punished by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty. All of which encourages us to produce herewith the first instalment of "Another Biography of Another Wonder Man."

All this we will do without any hope of monetary reward in this life and with a prayer on our lips that we will escape punishment for it in the next.

Book One.
Chapter One.
Act One.
Scene One.

We were first born into this world during a time which future historians will term memorable. In China a civil war was raging and the stock of all bandit corporations was selling at a premium. There was a famine in Russia, a water shortage in Hongkong and a strike in Australia. The newspapers were prophesying trouble in the Balkans and there was revolt in Mexico and Chile. It was summer in the Southern hemisphere and by the strangest coincidence, it was, at the same time, winter in the northern hemisphere. You can see in an instant that once that there was a bright future ahead of us. We were, in fact, unique.

As we look back on those good old days, we feel a pang of regret. The fuss they made of us! We remember poor old father calling his friends together and proudly announcing our arrival. They all clapped him on the back and said "Good old Kelly."

"Well," said father, "Let's go and wet the baby's head."

"Leave one there for me," we called out as they trooped out to McGinty's pub.

"All right, Son," he said.

The neighbours came round to see Old Kelly's son bathed for the first time in undistilled alcohol. We remember many of the Dad's old friends broke down and wept as they witnessed the ceremony.

In March, 1903 we met Esther. Esther was our first sweetheart, which she will learn for the first time when she reads this. We were too young (we were only two) to know the exact wording of a formal declaration, so we kept out soul-stirring love to ourselves.

Many a night we cried ourselves to sleep over Esther. The way we looked at it was that if we couldn't see Esther, our old man wasn't going to Siesta either. So we made him walk the floor.

Our second love affair was with Marion. But she was the Marion kind, if you get what we mean.

Just now we've got a date with Jennie. With a bit of luck we will be back here in time to write to-morrow's column.

of production. A man producing one commodity, as automobiles, contributes to the supply of automobiles, to be sure, but equally contributes to the demand for wheat, for silk, for cotton and for other commodities which he wants. And the man producing cotton or cotton goods contributes to a supply of these things, but also to demand for silk, for sugar, for automobiles and for other things which he wants. The old economics recognized that things could be produced in wrong proportions, some things too much, others too little, and that then great abnormalities and distortions would come. The old economics recognized that when you had overproduction of certain things and underproduction of other things, the terms of exchange between them could be so deranged that the buying power of the producers of the excessive commodities would sink very low, and then even the underproduced commodities would seem to be overproduced, because they could not be sold. But it sought the remedies in better balance and better proportion, and not in a general contraction of all production. The old economics saw purchasing power growing out of production, and it held that a good equilibrium among the various elements of production meant large aggregate purchasing power, which could take care of large aggregate production. The new economics separates production and buying power. It looks on goods on the one hand and buying power on the other hand as separate and independent things, and it proposes artificial in-

HONGKONG FORESHORE RIGHTS BILL

Local Protests Reach London

GOVERNMENT EXPLAINS POSITION

London, July 10. "I am perfectly certain that the Hongkong Government has no intention of using the Bill for any revolutionary purpose," declared Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies was replying to questions by Mr. Wardlaw Milne, who has been showing marked interest in the Hongkong Foreshore and Sea-Bed Works Ordinance.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister stated that as a result of correspondence with the Governor (Sir William Peel), certain amendments had been made to the Ordinance and the matter was still under consideration.

He added that the Bill for General Powers was subject to very special conditions regarding compensation.—Reuter.

GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

In simple language, the Ordinance provides general powers to take over re-claimed land for public works.

Enquiries at the Colonial Secretary's Office this morning elicited the information that the chief purpose of the ordinance was to permit the Government to resume marine land for public purposes without being compelled to promote a special Bill for each project.

PRIVATE RIGHTS.

The Hongkong Chamber of Commerce and the China Association in London are both materially interested in the Government's Bill which has encountered certain difficulties on the question of private rights, compensation, and the power of the authority to override private rights.

The Bill was sent Home in its final form in May for consideration and if approved, will come before the Legislative Council.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE POSITION

The views of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce who have been pursuing their enquiries into the matter for over a year on behalf of the many local firms whose interests are affected, are set forth in the annual report issued to-day. They can be taken as indicative of the general feeling among business firms that they are bound to suffer loss.

When interviewed on the subject, one official of a leading firm, was indignant. "What's the use of grumbling. The Government will probably do what they like," he said.

Other firms stated that they knew nothing about the progress of the Bill except that it was in the hands of the Chamber of Commerce and the lawyers.

REPRESENTATIONS.

Representations were first made to the Chamber of Commerce in the early part of last year with reference to the effect of a proviso of the "Ordinance to amend the Foreshore and Sea Bed Ordinance of 1901," which is closely linked up with the present proposals. The proviso and objections are given below.

"Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to derogate from or be inconsistent with the rights of sea access, if any, specifically granted to the holder of any lot, abutting directly on the sea or on any tidal river or channel connected therewith, by any Crown lease." The attention of the Chamber of Commerce was drawn to the Bill by a member who took legal advice as to the effect of the proviso upon owners of Marine lots.

SEA ACCESS.

He was advised that, as the holder of lots which abut on the harbour, he is entitled, at the present time, under the common law which forms part of the law in this Colony, to special rights of access to and across from his lands by means of waters adjacent thereto, and that these rights are special rights of sea access belonging to the owners of such lands as opposed to their general rights as members of the public to use such waters.

Under the principal Ordinance, No. 15 of 1901, to which the present Bill is an amendment, it was provided that nothing should be deemed to authorise the Crown to grant any Crown lease which would derogate from or be inconsistent with special rights of sea access, of any holder of a lot holding under a Crown lease without his consent.

The Bill now substitutes in the proviso the words "rights of sea access, if any, specifically granted to the holder of any lot abutting directly on the sea or any tidal river or channel connected therewith by any Crown lease" for the above mentioned words.

DESTROYING EFFECT.

The possessor of Marine Lots was further advised that as his Crown lease did not specifically grant rights of sea access, the effect of the Bill is to destroy his existing special rights of sea access to which he is entitled under the general law.

The Chamber of Commerce submitted the question to its Legal Sub-Committee which reported itself as in agreement with the legal opinion set forth above.

In particular, the Legal Sub-Committee is of opinion that the intention of the Bill is to enable the Government to abrogate when necessary the existing special rights of sea access to which riparian lot-holders generally in this Colony are at present entitled. One of the members of the Committee (the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton) informed the Sub-Committee that he was authorised by the Government to state that this is, in fact, the intention of Government in introducing this Bill.

SWEEPING CHANGES.

The Bill, if passed, will therefore make sweeping changes in the rights of the greater majority of owners of riparian lots bordering upon the foreshores of the Colony.

The Bill provides for compensation being granted to the owners of riparian lots who suffer "special" damage in their use of such lots and loss of value in their holdings, where their rights are interfered with, but under the terms of the Ordinance such compensation is only to be granted in a case in which, in the opinion of the Governor, "special" damage might accrue to the holder of any such lot, and it also provides that the Governor-in-Council may make an order for compensation to be assessed by the Land Officer or District Officer, and that any such assessment shall be subject to review by the Governor-in-Council whose decision shall be final.

"SPECIAL" DAMAGE.

It is true, says the Chamber of Commerce, that some riparian lot-holders may not be actually using sea rights and it may be said therefore that they may not suffer any special damage in being deprived of them. There is no doubt, however, that the rights are valuable, are attached to the soil, and are leaseable and saleable.

The Chamber of Commerce appreciates that, under the present law, the Government might find a reclamation scheme blocked by an obstinate riparian tenant who refuses to give his consent under Clause 3 of the present Ordinance; nevertheless the Chamber suggests that some method of overcoming this difficulty may be possible without prejudicing owners' rights. Pending a solution along those lines, the Chamber asked its representative on the Legislative Council to oppose the Bill.

Following these protests, the Government inserted the safeguards asked for and the revised Ordinance became law on August 18.

COMPENSATION ISSUE.

However, the Chamber was again called upon to take up the cudgels, this time over the draft of the present Bill contending that proposals contained in this new Ordinance went much further than the previous Amendment Ordinance, and that the provisions as to compensation were not the same.

Amongst other things the Chamber alleged that:—"The Draft Bill under consideration contains no reference whatever to 'sea access'."

In view of the omission, the Committee strongly recommended that the Draft Bill be amended to provide safeguards similar to those which were added to the Draft Bill to Amend the Foreshore and Sea Bed Ordinance, following representations made by the Chamber.

The Chamber was advised that having regard to Section 12 of the Draft Bill, it is arguable that all rights of riparian owners both under the special agreements and at common law can be abolished in the event of the Bill being passed in its present form, in which case, presumably, compensation would be merely a matter of grace, as otherwise Section 12 would appear to be merely a repetition of Section 11.

EX GRATIA

"Having regard also to Section 6 and 7 of the Bill it would appear that the claim to compensation is not a matter of right on the extinguishment of the claimant's rights, and if this is so, the claimants would appear again only to claim an ex gratia payment. It may also be argued that, in the event of the draft Bill being passed in its present form, any purchaser of this class of property after the passing of such legislation, buys with notice that the rights of navigation, sea access, etc., are specifically excluded and consequently, if works are commenced which affect his property, he suffers no damage in spite of Section 8 of the Draft Bill.

RESPECT FOR AGREEMENTS.

If the interpretation of the legal advisers to the Chamber is correct, the rights of a very large body of land owners will be seriously affected by the provisions of the Draft Bill, and the Committee has strongly protested against any attempt to deprive such owners of their inherent right of use of an access to the sea and also requested that it be made clear that special agreements made by the Government will be respected as is obviously the intention of the Government with regard to the Admiralty Works under Section 13 of the Draft Bill.

The Committee requested that the advice of the Honourable the Attorney-General be obtained as to whether the intention or effect of the Draft Bill is as suggested and that further consideration of the Draft Bill be postponed pending assurances to the contrary, and the introduction of amendments to safeguard the above matters.

CHINA ASSOCIATION.

The China Association, London, has also interested itself keenly in this question. Promise of amendment of the Bill has been given and of submission of the revised draft to the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. However, the Committee remains strongly of opinion that it is undesirable to place on the Statute Book an Ordinance as general in scope as the proposed measure, and that the introduction of a special Bill for each public work contemplated is much to be preferred.

AMERICAN BOOM DANGER

LOST PURCHASING POWER

Washington, July 10.

Significant corroboration of the anxiety of President Roosevelt and Brig.-General Johnson lest the rise in prices has outstripped the public's purchasing power was provided to-day.

In the course of the Federal Reserve Board's Report on market conditions it is stated that the value of department store sales in 201 towns during the month of June was four per cent. lower than in June, 1932, despite the swift rise in the manufacturing wholesale business in the last two months.

It means that the actual turnover of goods in bulk had been much less.

SLUMP IN DOLLAR.

Meanwhile, the marked slump in the dollar which is an important contributory factor continues.

The morning trading was active in a thin market, but later things quietened down, the American dollar hardening at 4.79 to the pound, only seven points off parity.

Both brokers and bankers profess ignorance regarding the specific cause of the dollar's weakness, but they suggest that it may be attributable to speculation and to a minor flight of American capital in a very thin market, where even small deals will cause a fluctuation in the rate.

Some quarters suggest that if the domestic price level of 1924/25 is reached, then a sixty-cent gold dollar is probable as compared with to-day's 69.26 cents.—Reuter.

CLOSING FIGURE.

New York, July 10. The American dollar closed at 4.79 7/8 on the Wall Street Exchange to-day.—Reuter.

"A VERY SERIOUS MATTER"

THEFT OF GOLD BY WORKER

"A very serious matter" said Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, in passing sentence of two months on a goldsmith for the theft by bailie of two taels eight mace of gold the property of his employers.

Sub-Inspector Smith, said defendant was employed at the Ho Kwong Kee shop. On June 16, he was given the gold by the complainant and told to make earrings. The work should have been finished at the end of June. Everyday, the complainant asked about the work, and daily the reason given by the defendant was that he had not yet finished. The master went to Central Police Station and lodged a report. Yesterday the Police made enquiries but defendant was not at work. He was, however, at work this morning, and from a drawer produced part of the gold.

Defendant, from the dock, stated he was implicated with others and they had taken the rest of the gold.

COMING SHORTLY TO THE KING'S THEATRE. PRIMITIVE ROMANCE In a weird setting.

ZOO IN BUDAPEST LORETTA YOUNG GENE RAYMOND

When leaving the Hariram Silk Store, Queen's Road Central, where alterations are being carried out, a young Chinese workman was noticed to have something bulging from his jacket. The proprietor suspected him and called a Police officer. The man was searched and the bundle was found to be four and a half yards of black silk. Brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, the defendant pleaded guilty and was sent to prison for six weeks.

A Chinese who secreted eight taels of illicit opium in his girdle and another twelve taels strapped round his right thigh, was fined $400 with the alternative of six months by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning. Another man was fined $300 or two months for possession of a quantity of raw opium.

Two Chinese women who admitted keeping sly brothels in Hollywood Road and Peel Street, were fined $100 and $75, respectively, by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

As a result of injuries which included a fractured skull, suffered when he fell after alighting from a moving tram at Hennessy Road, a Chinese died yesterday at the Government Civil Hospital.

The Hon. Treasurer of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul acknowledges with grateful thanks a donation of $6.40 from the Local Staff of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Ltd., in memory of the late Mrs. W. Gardner, instead of a wreath.

DEARY VARSITY CRICKET

D.F. WALKER'S INNINGS

London, July 10. One of the dreariest openings in the history of the annual inter-Varsity cricket matches was witnessed to-day under conditions dull to begin with, but which improved later in the day.

Oxford spent all day scoring 126 runs and losing seven wickets in the bargain.

EFFECT OF THE SUN.

But no cognisance was taken of the likely effects of the later sun, and in the afternoon, Oxford found themselves fighting for runs against a keen attack which took full advantage of the wicket now made tricky by the sun.

Only D. F. Walker, the Varsity's opening bat, shaped with any confidence against the Cambridge bowlers, and he played gallantly to score 46.—Reuter.

22 FALLS AT TENNIS

MISS HEELEY LOSES DRAMATIC GAME

There was a remarkable match at Beckenham in the Kent Lawn Tennis Championships.

Miss Mary Heeley, England's number one ranking player, was beaten in straight sets by Miss Nancy Lyle, at 6-1, 9-7.

What made the match remarkable was the complete inability of Miss Heeley to keep her foot-hold. She fell 22 times during the two sets, and many of the falls were heavy ones. But, on every occasion, she got up with cheery good humour and she never once held up the play.

Miss Lyle did not fall once. After winning the first set easily, Miss Lyle led at 4-2 in the second, but Miss Heeley then played fine lawn tennis to lead at 6-4 and 6-5. Miss Lyle maintained the even excellence of her game and went out at 9-7.

LORD TENNYSON

KEPT OUT OF TEAM BY SCORPION BITE

A bite from a scorpion in the West Indies 15 months ago prevented Lord Tennyson, captain of Hampshire, from leading his side against Somerset at Portsmouth three weeks ago.

Lord Tennyson has suffered intermittently from the effects of the bite, and returned from a cruise on which he was convalescing after blood-poisoning.

"I was bitten on the hand by the scorpion when we were playing in the West Indies the winter before last," he told a reporter. "It caused some infection, and I was laid up with blood-poisoning this spring. I am fairly fit again now, but the doctor will not let me play until we meet Warwickshire."

CORINTH & THE CUP

CLUB'S FUTURE AT STAKE

"Can Corinth be saved?" This is the question asked by thousands of the famous amateur club's well-wishers since the executive forwarded a letter to the Football Association resigning from the F.A. Cup competition.

It is generally felt that this action virtually means condemning to extinction a club of glorious traditions, a club which on two occasions supplied England on bloc with a full international eleven and which has rendered inestimable service to the game in Europe.

Several Corinthians had not been consulted on the matter, and they all disagreed with the committee's action.

One famous member of the club, who is the possessor of several amateur "caps" described the excuse given for not wishing to play in the first round as "feeble in the extreme." "Varsity men," he declared, "are usually much too inexperienced for this class of football, and as far as schoolmasters are concerned there could never be any difficulty about their getting leave—even for a mid-week replay—for such an honourable achievement as playing for Corinth in the Cup."

ACTION DEPLORED.

Another—a county cricketer—was much concerned that the general public might think the resignation an unsporting action.

Judging from correspondence and from the chatter at the Kingstonian celebration dinner (which was attended by several Soccer notabilities), the football public deplore the Corinthian committee's action. "Are they afraid of meeting us?" asked a member of Kingstonian who as amateur Cap-holders are also exempt until the first round.

Since Corinth first entered the competition practically their whole source of income has been derived from the F. A. Cup. With this revenue removed, it is difficult to see how they can carry on. Their men are domiciled all over the country—one member actually comes over from Ireland to play—and no club has greater proportionate travelling expenses.

The Corinthian club is limited to 50 members and if a general meeting were called or a ballot taken, it is not for a moment believed that they would withdraw from the Cup because they were asked to compete in the first round.

FOOTBALL LAWS REVISED

Corinthians' F.A. Cup Withdrawal

An alteration to Law 17, regarding the award of penalty kicks, was sanctioned at the annual meeting of the International Football Association in Portsmouth last month. The law now reads:

A penalty kick can be awarded irrespective of the position of the ball if in play at the time the offence is committed.

The motion by Ireland that Law 12 be altered was passed. It now reads:

A player having left the field of play from this or any other cause may only return when the ball ceased to be in play, and must report to the referee.

The Board decided that International Board meetings can be held in Continental cities other than Paris.

"Out, Caught Umpire"

HOW ACTRESSES PLAY CRICKET

Defeated by Scorer

Dr. A. J. Cronin, author of "Hatter's Castle," had the unique misfortune of being adjudged "Out, et. Umpire," in the Actresses v. Authors cricket match at The Elms, Hampstead, recently.

The match afforded a striking glimpse of the nature of cricket under the influence of the Brighter Cricket Reformers, particularly when a ball loaded so, as to bounce incorrectly was secretly introduced by one of the umpires, Mr. Bobby Howes.

BASEBALL TO-DAY.

Hongkong Baseball Club to Meet South China.

The baseball game between the Hongkong Baseball Club and South China scheduled for Sunday last but postponed on account of rain, will be played this afternoon at Caroline Hill at 4.30. This game will probably be the most important of the season as it is to be played between the two teams at present tied for first place in League standing.

WIGHTMAN CUP.

Mrs. Michell Gets Place in British Team.

London, July 10. Mrs. Michell has been picked to fill the remaining place in the team to represent Great Britain against America in the Wightman Cup match.

The team will now be as follows: Miss F. James, Miss Mary Heeley, Miss Betty Nuthall, Miss Dorothy Round, Miss Margaret Scriven, and Mrs. Michell.

The Wightman Cup is to be competed for by the ladies of Great Britain and the United States at Forest Hills, on August 4 and 5 next. —Reuter.

ELLSWORTH VINES SPEAKS

"MY FORM IS SHOCKING"

Ellsworth H. Vines, who last year won the Wimbledon singles championship at the first attempt, deprecated his form when he arrived in London to defend his title. With him were other American players—Keith Gledhill, his partner in the United States doubles championship, Lester, Stoeffer and C. Sutter.

Thirty-five rackets were in their baggage. "Listen," said Vines to a reporter. "I would not back myself in the singles for a dime. My form is shocking. I have not played a match for nearly six months, since I returned from Australia."

"I would rather win the doubles with Keith Gledhill this year, but we are much more anxious about the Davis Cup than Wimbledon. We want to take that Cup back home with us. "Of course, if I see I have a chance at Wimbledon, you can bet I'll go for it, but the young ones [Vines is 21] are coming along, you know."

As a result of yesterday's rain, local tennis courts were in an unplayable condition and the programme of matches arranged for the "A" Division of the Tennis League had to be postponed. The "A" Division has been particularly unfortunate in this respect, the postponement yesterday being about the third since the commencement of the League.

SPORT PALACE FOR LONDON

600,000 POUND BUILDING

TO HOLD 17,000 PEOPLE

Mr. Jeff Dickson, the famous boxing promoter, who is called the Tex Richard of Europe, is responsible for a project which will provide London with the largest and most completely equipped indoor sports arena in the world.

A site of over 2½ acres has been secured in Westminster, and on this will be erected the Westminster Stadium, in the heart of the British Empire, a building that will accommodate 17,000 spectators and in which every variety of sport can be staged.

This building which is to be erected on an island site between Page-street and Marsham-street, is adjacent to Lambeth Bridge.

CLEAR VIEW FOR ALL.

The plans have been prepared by the well-known architect Sir Frank Baines, and one of several original features is that so far as the spectators are concerned not a single pillar or support of any description will obstruct their view.

It is estimated that the cost will be about £600,000, and in view of the forthcoming appeal to the public on the financial side, it is worth noting that the promoter has received applications for shares amounting to a sixth of this sum.

THE DIRECTORS.

The chairman of the company for which Mr. Jeff Dickson will act as managing director is Sir Harry Greer, and the co-directors are Captain Herbert Buckmaster, Major Archibald George Church, D.S.C., M.C., Mr. John Carlisle Pomeroy Magwood and the Earl of Westmorland.

The facilities will be provided for such sports as boxing, ice hockey, ice skating, cycle racing and lawn tennis.

"VISIT TO THE INFERNO"

CHAPTER VIII.

The Fifth Stage

They passed on further and entered into the next grade; and on turning round a corner they saw a number of women naked and exposed except that they each had a short loin cloth to cover them. All their other articles of clothing and their ornaments and shoes were thrown together in a heap.

Cowheaded lictors caught the women by their hair and pulled them into the middle of a great grindstone. The mouth of this stone was about eighteen inches wide, large enough for one person to go in.

The women wept and wailed piteously and cried out loudly, "Save Life," "Help." One of them gripped the base of the grindstone and refused to move, realising the lictors who were pulling her up to the mouth of the mill. The lictors gave a great pull and placed her head in the mouth of the mill. Her feet were pointing to the heavens and the lictors turned her and pushed her in. Most of the women were treated in this summary manner.

TERRIBLE SPECTACLE.

This spectacle was so terrible that the eye could not bear to look on it. Some of the lictors were forcing the women into the pit of the mortar, the mouth of which was about four feet wide.

The women wept bitterly and would not go down, and lay on the ground and howled and kicked.

In such cases one lictor would seize the head and another the feet of the woman, and they carried them down into the pit of the mortar. Their bodies and legs were exposed and they had only about five inches of cloth about their waists to cover their nakedness.

The great pestle came down on them and the sound of their groans of pain was lengthened out until it seemed almost continuous. Their arms and legs waved about and their flesh and blood was splashed all round the pit.

Laan Kat could not bear the sight; he turned away his face and left the place asking why the women were treated so cruelly. He said, "Speaking generally, women are of a meek and gentle disposition. They are not evil nor cruel and never commit great offences such as murdering people in great ferocity. Why then do they receive such terrible punishment?" Truly this is difficult to explain.

WHY THEY SUFFER.

Bluecoat replied, saying, "Well, as to women in the world, everyone knows their good points, but people generally do not observe their evil deeds."

"For instance, some women hate their husbands when they take concubines and they become very jealous. Such women would be willing to make the line of descent cease, and so cut off the sacrifices at the family altar because there would be no son to carry on the succession unless the man took the concubine. They are angry too when their husbands spend money to support their parents, and purposely browbeat the parents and give them insufficient food and clothing."

"Besides this they do not treat the uncles of the family (including the husband's brothers) with proper respect, and are unkindly disposed to them."

In this way the near relatives become as if they were distant relatives, and they repay kindness with enmity. In all these ways they help increase the errors and sins of their husbands, and bring trouble on later generations, bringing the family down to destruction."

"Women of this kind are not punished by the laws of the land, and it is difficult to control them by the ordinary law of the family or clan. There is only one way of dealing with such women, and bringing them to account, and that is by the pains and penalties of Hades."

"Besides these there are some women who combine together to lead people on to fornication and give themselves up to the evil practice of kidnapping and deceit. In what grade or depth of sin should they be classed?"

Bluecoat then led him on to a part of the fifth grade where he saw large numbers of great furnaces, from which fierce flames were belching forth, and there were large boilers over the fires in which there was a quantity of oily soup boiling up. The heat was intense and yet constantly increased.

They went near to the boilers to see what was going on, and saw numbers of people rising and falling with the bubbling soup. Some were groaning and some weeping, some were sinking and some rising; their very bones were being rotted away.

Laan Kat asked what class of sinners were subjected to this punishment, and what crimes they had committed to merit such treatment.

Bluecoat replied, saying, "Most of these people were local braves and bullies and villains, and in reply to the question as to how it was they made such fearful noises as if they felt the pain and bitterness very intensely, he said, 'When people are in the world they regard the body as the most precious thing, and they devote all their energy to building up physical energy."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

FIRM

According to Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co., the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done 4,840,000 shares. Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co. report:—Instead of a sharp reaction it is quite possible that the market may drift awhile. Reactionary advances are quite general; at the same time there seems no general urge to sell and traders are still talking of a technical correction. It is difficult to see what influence there is to cause the unloading of long stocks in volume. Wheat: Renewed inflation and buying met with a little resistance. Beneficial rates are reported in Canada and the Dakotas. The Government report is considered as bullish. Cotton: Strong all day. Demand has been large and offerings limited. The recent reaction strengthened the technical position. Silver: On account of the wide disparity between New York and London there has been considerable buying here and selling abroad. Shanghai is reported to be doing this.

"Really," he said, "It is the spirit that makes men able to eat and drink and to walk about and run. It is the spirit that makes men able to ascend into heaven and to go down into the earth and to realise sorrow and joy. If their spirit should be lost, then they could not eat nor drink, nor could they go about, and whether the bones change or the whole frame disintegrate in the end they are quite useless."

PAIN OF THE SOUL.

"Even if the whole body should remain, they have a mouth but cannot speak, and ears but cannot hear, hands which cannot move and feet which cannot walk. If you ask them anything they cannot reply. If you strike them they have no feeling and it does not hurt them."

"When they were alive and felt pain it was because their spirit was in their body. When they are dead and feel no pain it is because their soul has left the body. Now their body is not able to go about, that which now comes and goes is the shade or apparition of their soul."

"The shade body cannot eat food, but it can receive income. The body does not make a sound, but in the stillness and silence of the night, the voice, or cry of the ghost or devil may be heard."

"Dead flesh cannot feel pain but the soul can feel pain."

"Now, as the spirit has gone into the nether world that which is burnt in the soul, that which is cooked (in the oil) is the soul or spirit. The soul is whipped or beaten and at the same time the spirit needs to be aroused and awakened."

"The body is called dead-body, but he who speaks of a dead soul, they talk of damaged flesh but not of rotten."

spirit. As the spirit cannot die it must still be existent.

"So, though the body is dead the soul goes to live in another place. It may be cooked and not destroyed, yet still the soul feels pain. You must have heard of certain people in ancient times who were decapitated. Some people said that this was a great kindness because the body would be in one place and the head in another."

SOUND DOCTRINE.

"People in the world only know that there are headless devils: they do not know that there are also headless gods."

"It may be possible that faithful sons, loyal ministers, righteous husbands and chaste wives may not be able to avoid calamities, they may go to their death without having before them. After their death would they become idols or gods? Could they then have a body with no head? So it is quite clear that though the head of the body may be cut off, the head of the soul cannot be cut off."

"If the head be amputated it cannot be again joined to the body, but in the case of the shade or the soul it can be united as silk threads running through water may be connected, or as tobacco which is cut by a knife. If this were not so then there would be cases of disembodied persons in hell, and of people whose tongues were cut out. If there were cases of this kind, when the punishment was fulfilled and the soul was sent into the world in another form, then the tongue would have no taste."

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Gay and colourful Vienna of more than a century ago is the setting for "Gongress Dances," the Ufa operatic satire which is now showing at the Central Theatre.

It is a Vienna of wine, song, gaiety and intrigue, and all of these elements are cleverly interwoven in this continental screen production, one that seems destined to enjoy a long and profitable run.

The story has to do with the royal intrigues of the days of Napoleon, then banished to Elba. The rulers of Austria, Russia, France and other countries naturally are concerned over the fate of Bonaparte and either in person or through high diplomatic representatives gather in Vienna to decide the vanquished Napoleon's fate.

Austria's Chancellor, Prince Metternich, cleverly portrayed by Conrad Veidt, is determined that he shall remain in exile and exerts every means to keep Czar Alexander of Russia from the congress called in the Austrian capital.

Despite the efforts of the enchanting Lillian Harvey, as Christel, the glove-shop girl, and Lili Dagover, as the alluring Comtesse Metternich, fails to keep Alexander from the conference and the Congress dance, but the infatuation of the Russian emperor for the delightful shopgirl finally carries the day for the Chancellor, whose joy, however, is short-lived, as word comes announcing Napoleon's escape.

"Hell Below"

"Hell Below," the submarine adventure film which caused widespread comment during its long run at the Astor Theatre in New York City, comes on Thursday to the Queen's Theatre giving local filmgoers a chance to view what is said to be the most thrilling marine spectacle ever to reach the talkies.

Robert Montgomery heads the cast of "Hell Below," in what critics concede to be the outstanding role of his career. As the young lieutenant who falls hopelessly in love with a woman already married, he is precipitated into a stirring series of occurrences in which he disobeys the orders of his submarine commander in an effort to save his friend adrift at sea and target for the guns of a squadron of airplanes, is dishonourably dismissed from the service after unwittingly causing the entire crew a narrow escape from a horrible death at the bottom of the ocean, and finally vindicates himself before both his commander and the woman he loves in a heroic gesture in which he forfeits his life.

Walter Huston, who recently contributed a memorable portrayal to the screen as the President in "Gabriel Over the White House," has another stirring role as the submarine commander, and the ace cast also includes such notable film names as Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young.

One camera was operated with the aid of a periscope so that scenes above the water were actually recorded inside one of the submarines. Interior sequences of the production were made at the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer studios, where a complete replica of the submarine which had served as a basis of operations in Honolulu was reconstructed.

"Handle With Care"
James Dunn and Boots Mallory play the leading romantic roles in "Handle With Care," in which El Brendel is also featured. David Butler, famed for such successes as "Sunny Side Up," "Delicious" and "Down to Earth," wrote the story and directed the picture, which will be screened at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

They meet as the result of the arrest of a six-year-old youngster accused of stealing milk to feed a horde of hungry cats and discover they were schoolyard sweethearts. Their romance gets a fresh start, but obstacles menace their happiness and, following a misunderstanding, they part. How they are reunited through the intervention of a pair of precocious youngsters, instrumental in eliminating sinister influences, is the basis of what is said to be an intriguing plot.

"She Done Him Wrong"
Mae West makes her debut as a screen star in "She Done Him Wrong," lusty melodrama which she herself wrote, and which is showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

"She Done Him Wrong" is a story of the New York Bowery, with its collection of wide-open saloons, wise guys, and frivolous dames. It centres around a singer known as "Lady Lou," who has a way with men and who accepts their attention in return for diamonds. Her collection of gems, so great is her popularity, is ransom for half a dozen kings.

Mina Woot appears in that role. Noah Berry is the saloon-keeper who is furnishing the jewels at the moment. Cary Grant is ostensibly the head of a nearby Mission, who turns out to be as susceptible to her charms as any of the natives of the district. A startling, dramatic climax follows their mutual discovery of this fact.

and the stomach would not be satisfied." Ting Laan-kat jumped up and clapped his hands, saying, "This is a most excellent discourse and most sound doctrine." It is not surprising that you, sir, were a scholar in your former existence. You have exalted my mind and illumined my heart. It is like the saying, 'To talk with you for half a day is better than studying in a school for ten years. I will go home now.'

A NEW MONETARY STANDARD OTHER THAN GOLD

Mr. Neville Chamberlain's Hint During Commons Debate on Conference

STABILISATION SNAGS

DISTURBING EFFECT ON PUBLIC OPINION

"INNOCUOUS STUFF"

LONDON, JULY 10.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, surveyed the prospects and the present position of the World Economic Conference before a crowded House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. Chamberlain described as "pretty innocuous stuff" the gold bloc resolution which President Roosevelt rejected, but the effect of the rejection on public opinion in the gold countries was extremely disturbing.

The Chancellor advised a level-headed attitude, especially in connexion with violent depreciation of the Dollar.

If they could agree on a return to the gold standard, or on an international monetary standard, the Conference would have done very useful work to facilitate a return to normal conditions. The raising of prices or wholesale commodities was still the British primary objective.

MR. LANSBURY'S SUGGESTION

The Chancellor of the Exchequer expressed the view that the raising of commodity prices could not be effected by monetary action alone. The building up of confidence was essential.

To the belief that the world's chief troubles could only be solved by international action and agreement.

TEMPORARY HALT.

The grave proportions which the stabilisation question had assumed and its final effect in bringing some of the Conference's work to a temporary halt was described by Mr. Chamberlain.

He said that no agreement had been reached in reference to future progress, but they hoped that it would still be found possible to bridge the difficulties.

Had they known beforehand what was going to happen, it might have made some difference to their view of the desirability of holding the Conference.

Nevertheless, he urged that the violent and largely unnatural depreciation of the dollar should not lead them to early and ill-considered conclusions.

NO SPARKLE.

The debate lacked sparkle. It merely afforded the text for the leading speakers of the House of Commons to preach their well-worn (if not worn-out) economic and financial principles.

There was little criticism of the Government apart from that levelled by Mr. George Lansbury, the Leader of the Opposition, who accused Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. MacDonald of an entire lack of policy.

Mr. Lansbury declared that the present industrial and financial system had outlived its usefulness.

"A DECENT TEAR."

Mr. L.C.M.S. Amery, former Dominions Secretary, shed a "decent tear" over the fate of the Conference, but held that nobody was to blame.

Sir Herbert Samuel, the Liberal leader, praying for the restoration of international trade, expressed the opinion that if defensive measures were necessary they should be calculated to meet a particular evil in view, for instance, of the fact that the yen had depreciated forty per cent. and that Japanese goods had flooded the market.

DRASTIC MEASURES.

He said it was no good adopting a twenty per cent. tariff to

ism is certainly less justifiable to-day. According to one member of the Bureau, it had been recognised that it was dangerous to divide the world into blocs and a strong endeavour would be made to find a middle course which both main divisions of the Conference will be able to follow.

This suggestion of a compromise has been heard for the past several days in many spheres, and has apparently something in foundation.

No Agreement.

A meeting of Monetary sub-Commission No. 2 to discuss re-establishment of an international monetary standard, which preceded the Bureau session, ended indecisively. No date for the sub-Commission's reassembly was set.

The delegates discussed the suggestion of Mr. Walter Eliot, on behalf of Mr. Chamberlain, that the Commission continue its work. The British spokesman argued that a return to the gold standard would be facilitated by an agreement as to principles of the working of that standard in the future.

French Opposition.

M. Bonnet of France opposed the suggestion with the now well-known contention that it was necessary first to know whether the Conference were ready to put a definite term to exchange fluctuations due to speculation.

Senator Pittman of the United States, Chairman of the Silver sub-Committee, stated that he would be in a position to report more fully on the silver question before the end of the week.

Senator Pittman later told Reuter that London believed a complete silver agreement would be reached, possibly some time this week. The main stumbling block was the deadlock with India on the subject of long term restriction of exports, and this had been overcome.

Chairman Klenck proposed that they should refer to the Bureau certain resolutions, which were unanimously supported, and which dealt with four topics: first, a suggestion for the earliest possible accomplishment of stabilisation; second, that gold be the recognised standard; thirdly, that monetary gold should not be used in internal circulation; and fourthly, that the gold cover be fixed at twenty-five per cent.

The Bureau's decision to establish a Drafting Committee to consider the case of the Subsidies and Commercial Policy sub-Commissions, appears to amount to the exercising by the Bureau of its over-riding powers, as the balance of opinion in these committees has been in favour of discontinuance of their discussions.

LAND ON MAINLAND AUCTIONED.

A SITE AT MATAUCHUNG ACQUIRED BY CHINESE

A site at Matauchung, near Kowloon City, was sold by public auction at the offices of the P.W.D. yesterday. With an area of 7,180 sq. ft. it fronts Tam Kung Road, being registered as Kowloon Inland Lot No. 8270. The purchase price was $5,448.

The site is regarded as most suitable for a workshop or factory, but Mr. Wong Hoi, its new owner, was reluctant to commit himself to any definite statement of his intentions. He said it might be put to industrial use for the time being, but that later it was possible tenants would occupy the land.

A special condition of sale requires the purchaser to make rateable improvements on the land to a value of not less than $24,000, within a fixed period.

MACAO D.P.W. LEAVING SHORTLY

COL. MONTEIRO'S GOOD WOK

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, July 10. The early departure of Col. Schiappa Monteiro, who has been the Director of the Public Works Department at Macao for several years and as such has contributed a great deal to so much recent activity at Macao, will be noted with more than ordinary interest. Hongkong has, in recent years, paid great attention to the development of its little neighbour Macao, and in no sphere of activity has the interest been greater than with the development of public works.

For Macao, during Col. Schiappa's administration in the dual capacity of Director of the Public Works Department and the Port Works, has been developed and improved on a large scale. The traffic problem which is now engaging more than ever the attention of the authorities, has been greatly relieved by the opening of new avenues, widening of the narrow roads, making alignments of tortuous streets, and resurfacing with cement concrete or asphalt the principal thoroughfares of the colony. The planting of shrubs and trees in the city, whenever possible, has also engaged the attention of the Public Works Department so to make this city more attractive.

WATER PROBLEM.

It is unfortunate but true to state that during recent years the local government has not been able to dispose of sufficient means for much needed public works, for the Central Government has demanded more money from the colonies for loan services. Despite such a handicap, however, this office did not diminish any of his efforts with the limited resources that the local government could contribute for public works. He made the best use of the little there was and it is gratifying to state that during his term in the office many important works were completed in Macao.

With Col. Schiappa's technical advice and encouragement to help in the solution of the problem of the water supply for the colony, a problem which occupied the attention of so many of his predecessors.

His attention went further, for measures were adopted to dredge the channels of both the inner and the outer ports so as to maintain a draught sufficient for Hongkong and Canton Lines and other shipping.

It is safe to say that Col. Schiappa occupies a conspicuous place amongst recent directors of Public Works at Macao, and he leaves Macao, on the expiry of his term of service with a fine record of service. His many friends in Macao join in wishing him continued success in his career.

BEES 9,000,000 YEARS OLD

DISCOVERY MADE BY GERMAN

LIKE PRESENT DAY HONEY BEE

Cologne.

Evidence that bees buzzed busily about in Germany more than nine million years ago has been found by Herr Georg Statz, a Cologne teacher.

For several years past Herr Statz has delved in the tortoise deposits near Rott, in the Seven Mountains district of the Rhineland, for fossils. Among his recent finds was a perfect impression of a bee. There is every reason to assume that the insect was but little inferior in development to the present-day honey bee.

Herr Statz has already made known his discovery to the scientific world. No one yet appears to have challenged his theory as to the age of the Rott bee.

The original impression of the bee is included in Herr Statz's collection of fossils now being shown to the public at an exhibition in the city.—Reuter.

WEEKLY TRAFFIC CASES

P. W. D. LORRY DRIVER FINED

Chief Inspector Marks was the complainant in a case before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, in which Cheng-yip, the driver of a P. W. D. lorry, No. 996, was summoned for dangerous driving in Whitfield.

Inspector Marks said that he was driving along Whitfield, when defendant cut in in front of his car from behind a tram car. He called out to defendant to stop, but he continued to drive on. He had to apply his brakes to avoid an accident.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $30.

Li Fook, the driver of public car No. 171, was summoned by Traffic Sergeant Youe for driving in a dangerous manner in Pokfulam Road.

Sergeant Youe was driving a motor cycle combination along Pokfulam Road, and when within 400 yards from the Dairy Farm saw the defendant coming in the opposite direction on the wrong side of the road. He had to swerve to avoid a collision.

A fine of $25 was imposed.

PASSING STATIONARY TRAM.

Two fines of $10 each were imposed on Li Chan, the driver of public car No. 253, for passing a stationary tram car and for not notifying his change of address to the police.

Traffic Inspector Alexander said defendant passed a stationary tram car in Des Voeux Road, Central. An old gentleman was just alighting from the tram. The driver of the tram shouted to defendant to stop, but defendant passed the car. He then reversed and wanted to assault the passengers.

Defendant stated that someone struck him across the eye with a newspaper.

BUS DRIVER FINED.

For having disobeyed a police signal in Arbuthnot Road, Ng Ting, the driver of motor bus No. 618 was fined $15.

Inspector Alexander said that the complainant, Mrs. P. E. Barker was driving up Arbuthnot Road and was given the green signal. The bus came along from the top of the road and the defendant absolutely ignored the red signal. Mr. Schofield remarked that it was a very dangerous corner, when imposing the fine.

NOVEL LEGAL POINT

DEBT WHICH COULD NOT BE CLAIMED

SOLICITOR WINS LEGAL

An interesting legal point was raised before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, when Heung Yau, apprentice, summoned Lau Yu-fuk, manager of the Tung Tai Engineering shop, 10, Whitfield Road, for withholding a sum of $50 being a deposit for apprenticeship from the complainant.

Mr. D. B. Evans, for the defendant, said it did not seem to him that the Court could hear the claim. It was not a civil debt that could be tried summarily by a magistrate. He referred to section 60 of the Magistrates Ordinance, and quoted from the preliminary to the ordinance, which stated: "Civil debt is any sum of money, claimed to be due, which is recoverable before a magistrate, on complaint and not on information."

There were only certain debts which could be claimed in that Court, for instance, when a surety goes wrong in the Court. If debts could be claimed thus, there would be no Summary Court at all, said Mr. Evans.

The magistrate—I have never heard of this being used before.

Mr. Evans—I submit it cannot be used. Read the first section of sub-section 61, it makes it clearer. "Any sum of money recoverable summarily is a civil debt."

OBSOLETE ORDINANCE.

The magistrate remarked the ordinance was not very clear. It seemed to him that although the Ordinance did not give him jurisdiction, he still seemed to have it.

Mr. Evans—I don't think it means that. Any civil debt would be recoverable. I would never go to O. J. (Laughter).

His Worship—You could only get five dollars cost in this Court.

Magistrate—I must say I was rather misled by the procedure in the district office.

Mr. Evans—They can do anything there.

Magistrate—We have a small debts court there.

Addressing complainant, his Worship said:—The solicitor for the defendant has pleaded, and rightly too, that I have no jurisdiction to deal with the case.

Complainant—Then I will have to go back to Canton.

Mr. Evans mentioned he would endeavour to settle the matter.

MOTOR-HORN MORSE SIGNALS

AN EXPERIMENT BY CZECHO-SLOVAKIANS

Prague.

A system of "morse signals by motor-horn" is being planned by Czecho-Slovak motorists' organisations.

By sounding "dots and dashes" on their horns, motorists will be able to advise others of their intentions. It is supposed—whether it may be "going to pass," "Am stopping," "Your lights are out" or what not.

Legal enforcement of the method is now being sought.—Reuter.

15 YEARS OF SOVIET ART

LENIN AND STALIN ROOMS

Moscow.

An exhibition of Soviet art created during the past fifteen years is being opened here.

It will consist of four sections—paintings, posters and political caricature, sculpture, and scenery. These four sections will be displayed respectively in the Historical Museum, the Tretyakov Art Gallery, the Museum of Fine Arts and the Bakhrushan Theatrical Museum.

One section of the exhibition will contain two rooms—the "Lenin Room" and the "Stalin Room"—in which art referring to the two leaders will be shown.—Reuter.

HUNT FOR A WITCH

INNOCENT NATIVE MISTAKEN

POLICE RESCUE

Durban.

A witch hunt by thousands of natives and Indians after an innocent native woman who had to be rescued by the entire location staff and the police took place in the Taylor-Street native location. The chase was the outcome of rumours of a baby-eating witch that had been circulating throughout the native and Indian communities in Durban for several days. Some stories credited her with eating children raw and others with making baby broth but all were firmly convinced and the police actually made a search for the mysterious woman.

These were some of her attributes according to the tales. She could vanish into thin air at will. She had a mysterious power over children and she could escape from any police cordon by turning into a being without substance and walking through the locked door or floating through the cell window. The police could find no such woman and no case of a baby having disappeared but their best assurance could not quieten the district.

INNOCENT WOMAN VICTIMISED.

Following a scare that the witch had arrived, several thousands of natives and Indians rushed towards the location, where the Superintendent and a staff of over twenty men had the greatest difficulty in protecting an innocent native woman. She had been chased for half a mile and was in great distress when she was rescued and placed out of harm's way in the compound office. Dozens of natives, however, convinced that she was the witch, clambered on the roof, while the crowd surrounded the office and commanded that the woman be handed over.

The police arrived and rescued the woman in a car, the crowd giving chase. The woman was sent to the main police station for protection.—Reuter.

A "CLEANLINESS" CARNIVAL

NOVEL DEMONSTRATION IN RUSSIA

Helsingfors.

Washerwomen carrying towels and bars of soap, hairdressers flourishing scissors and razors, cooks "armed" with choppers and carving knives, and scavengers shouldering their spades, marched through the streets of Kharkoff in Soviet Russia during a novel carnival organised by the authorities.

The object of the carnival, it is reported here, was to impress upon the inhabitants of the town the necessity of personal tidiness and general cleanliness.—Reuter.

AN ELECTRIC REFEREE

"HIS" DECISIONS ARE ALWAYS RIGHT

Budapest.

A referee whose decisions cannot be wrong will officiate in the International Fencing Championships here this summer. "He" will be electric.

Fencing faults will be detected by means of an electro-magnetic "eye" and by this means it is expected that the hitherto frequent disputes between judges and fencers will be avoided.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S POLICY
QUESTIONED

London, July 10. Mr. J. R. Roper to-day asked Mr. Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons whether he was aware that Mr. T. V. Soong, China's Finance Minister, was endeavouring to negotiate a large loan with London bankers. He asked, too, if the Government would seek to make conditional to such a loan, if it were contemplated, a clause that proceeds should be expended in the purchase of British goods.

Mr. Grattan Doyle asked whether authority for a loan to China would be refused, until the defaulted debts of the Chinese Government, respecting railroad loans, were remedied.

Mr. Hore-Belisha, replying, reminded the House that no foreign loans were being undertaken from London at present.

As far as he was aware, said Mr. Hore-Belisha, no negotiations of the kind suggested were occurring.

Mr. P. J. H. Hannon asked whether the principles mentioned by the previous questioners would be observed if such a loan were issued.

Mr. Hore-Belisha replied that it was a hypothetical question. He could give no answer.—Reuter.

ALLEGED INFRINGEMENT

OF TRADE MARK FOR BATTERIES

The Merry Battery Factory, 84, Portland Street, Yaumati, were the complainants before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, against the Star Battery Factory, 284, Gloucester Road, Wanchai, for alleged infringement of trade mark for batteries. The hearing was adjourned to July 24.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall appeared for the complainants while Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho was for the defence.

Mr. Botelho asked for an adjournment in order to procure certain documents from Penang which would prove his case. Both complainant and defendant firms were agents for making batteries for the Penang firm. Defendants had instructions to use the labels and it was part of their case that they were not served in Hongkong.

Mr. Rendall said the trade mark was registered in Hongkong on June 10, this year. Chan Poon-shek, managing partner of the complainant firm, went to the Star Battery Factory, and purchased a small box of batteries all of which bore infringements of his trade mark. A search warrant was taken out and four large cases full of similar batteries were seized as well as five or six bundles of labels.

Evidence of the purchase was given by Chan Poon-shek, and

FALSE MARKING OF GOODS

TRICK OF HONGKONG FIRMS

Evidence that certain firms have been marking goods which they manufactured here "Made in U.S.A.," "Made in Germany," "Made in England," etc., has been brought to the notice of the Chamber of Commerce.

In certain cases it was alleged that specific names of supposedly American manufacturers were used.

The Chamber of Commerce was asked whether it would be prepared to institute proceedings in such cases. In reply, the Committee expressed the opinion that where specific names were mentioned the most appropriate course of action would be for the importing firm to take up the matter on behalf of the manufacturers. In cases where the misleading marking was limited to a falsely ascribed country of manufacture, the Committee was of opinion that importers concerned should report details to the Hongkong Government with actual evidence of the misleading mark, the Chamber of Commerce not being in a position to undertake such prosecutions.

Det. Sergt. Fowlie deposed to the seizure.

CONSPIRACY TO STEAL SILK

FOKIS SUCCESSFULLY TRAIL DEFENDANTS

Six weeks' hard labour was the sentence imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning on Chan Li Wah, 35, unemployed, on a charge of conspiracy to steal 18 pieces of silk from a shop at 7, Fat Hing Street. Another defendant, Man Chaim, alias Man Lul-tung, 30, also unemployed, was discharged.

Detective-Sergeant Fowlie said that both defendants lived at 141, Johnston Road. On Saturday afternoon the first defendant went to the shop and stating his aunt had advised him to buy some silk, selected 18 pieces valued at $181.60. At his request, the silk was delivered, and the master, having a slight suspicion, sent out two foks to carry the parcel. They went by Queen's Road, Hollywood Road, Elgin Street, then to Staunton Street, where they eventually stopped at a medicine shop, where the second defendant was present. The foks demanded payment. Second defendant told them to leave the parcel and to follow the first man who would pay them. They refused. Both defendants went with the coolies along Old Bailey, and at Connaught Road Central, one of them left the party. The foks, thinking he had gone to fetch a gun to "beat them up," called for a policeman, and the defendant was arrested. Second defendant was later found at the flat in Johnston Road.
